

Laird Reduces Vietnam Funds In Budget Bid

Raids, Shipping to be Curtailed
In Effort to Save $613 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, moving to cut military spending another $613 million, announced today plans to reduce B52 bomber sorties and trim several naval ships in the Vietnam war.

Laird also told the House Armed Services Committee he is postponing purchase of a short range, bomber-launched missile call SRAM until tests show whether it will work.

These actions, representing about half the $613 million, brought to more than $1.1 billion the amount of spending pared by Laird from the Johnson administration's final defense budget for fiscal 1970.

The new total stands at $77.9 billion for the bookkeeping year starting July 1. Pentagon officials indicated more slashes are under study.

His comments were made in a statement for delivery at a closed committee session and released earlier to newsmen.

Laird made it plain the fresh spending reductions were related to President Nixon's call for extension of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

"The nation is confronted with an extremely difficult and dangerous economic and fiscal situation," Laird said. He noted Nixon had ordered "significant reductions" in federal budget estimates to cope with the problem.

The Pentagon chief's second whack at the defense budget in two weeks was a patchwork including stretching out some projects, deferring others—and in some cases reversing actions Laird announced to the Senate Armed Services Committee only two weeks ago.

His action to reduce the number of B52 sorties in the Vietnam war was a switch from his March 19 position and amounts to at least a partial reinstatement of a Johnson administration plan.

Current Rate

Two weeks ago, after returning from a trip to Vietnam, Laird said "on the basis of my own observations" he had concluded enough money should be provided to support the current rate of B52 sorties through June 1970 as recommended by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam.

But Laird said today, "As much as I would like to support his recommendation, the budget stringencies under which we must operate in fiscal 1970 will not permit a continuation of that rate beyond June 1969."

The defense secretary did not repeat his March 19 statement that Abrams "considers the B52 to be one of his most important weapons."

There was no indication of how much of a reduction will be made in the current 1,800 bomber sorties a month against enemy targets in South Vietnam and Laos. A sortie is a single flight by a single plane.

Secret Talks May Be Under Way, Thieu Indicates

SAIGON (AP)—President Nguyen Van Thieu indicated today that secret talks may already be under way between the Saigon government and the National Liberation Front.

"I cannot tell you. It is very secret," he told newsmen during a Senate reception. "We have to keep them (peace talks) as private as possible if we would like to have some success about them."

North Vietnam and the NLF strongly denounced the United States and South Vietnam last Thursday for seeking private talks but stopped short of rejecting the proposal.

Preparations Complete for Burial in Chapel in Abilene

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Fellow soldiers, friends and neighbors of Dwight D. Eisenhower completed their sad preparations today for his burial in his old home town.

As the funeral train rolled westward from Washington, Abilene made ready to accord the nation's 34th president both public and private memorial services Wednesday.

Up to 100,000 persons were expected to jam their way into this northern Kansas community of 8,000 which once served as the terminus of the old Chisholm cattle trail.

The weather forecast was partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the 60s.

Arrive Tonight

The train was expected to arrive at the Union Pacific depot late tonight or early Wednesday after a 1,300-mile journey bearing the body of Eisenhower, members of his family and a few friends.

Eisenhower's Body Being Carried to Boyhood Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Past surprised diners abandoned their hushed clusters of townfolk and rushed outside to stand silent in the drizzle until the car, its paint gleaming again, was recoupled to the train.

It headed west across the plains at 10:33 a.m. EST, almost back on the schedule which was to bring it to Abilene around the midnight hour.

Karen Husband of Livermore, Ky., a co-ed from the University of Kentucky at Lexington who skipped classes to wait at Union Station, told a reporter: "I thought he was the greatest."

As the funeral train with black crepe drawn across its windows passed through Charlestown, Va., the soaring words of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" rose from the crowd.

At the rear of the train, came the private railroad car of the former President, this time carrying his widow on the long trip west from Washington.

At midnight the funeral train will reach Abilene, the last scene for the five days of farewell to the general who led his own and family, worn by the tears and strain of three days of funeral pomp and homage in the nation's capital.

Instead . . . the rust-flecked and dust-streaked baggage car was shunted to a wash rack in an industrial area a mile north

President Nixon, the political heir whom Eisenhower lived to see in the White House at last, will fly here for the final services.

Fiery Blast Traps Miners

Nixon Conferring With Dignitaries

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — A fiery blast of methane gas trapped 145 to 168 men 1,700 feet down in a Mexican coal mine today and officials reported it may take as long as 15 days to reach all of them.

Mine company officials in Coahuila State were checking over work lists in an attempt to determine exactly how many men went down into the mine, before the explosion Monday afternoon.

Lists given to reporters by the mine owners showed 168 men went down, but Ignacio Villaseñor, chief engineer and local representative of the company, said his information was that 145 men entered the tunnel before the blast.

Bodies Recovered

Seven bodies were recovered as of this morning. One of them was that of a rescue worker overcome by the gas.

The company is Altos Hornos de Mexico.

Dr. J. Ramos, director of the nearby Sabinas Red Cross Hospital, said he had little hope that any of the men survived.

"After the explosion they could have died from suffocation, toxic poisoning or burning," he said.

Some rescue officials expressed a hope of reaching some of the trapped men in 72 hours, but the mine tunnels were a shambles and rescue officials said it may be as long as 15 days before men could dig down to reach all of the victims.

Gas still lingered in pockets of the two mine shafts where, according to work list data supplied by the company, the 168 men remained trapped.

The lists showed 43 miners trapped in the No. 3 shaft, where the explosion occurred. Officials said it was probably caused by a short circuit.

Another 125 were trapped in the nearby No. 2 shaft, officials said. All were believed to be at a depth of about 1,700 feet.

Troops were rushed out to control victims' families who

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon set aside his entire schedule today for private conferences with a dozen foreign leaders, including South Vietnam's vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky.

Nixon ruled out the presence of any advisers at the session save for interpreters. The meeting site was his oval office in the west wing of the White House.

Ostensibly, the President's chats with foreign leaders who came here to attend funeral services for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower were largely ceremonial in nature. However, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler pointedly declined to rule out substantive discussions on world affairs.

No Agenda

"There is no agenda," he said.

Ky will be flying from Washington to the Vietnam peace talks in Paris and it seemed certain he and Nixon would discuss that parley, as they did when they met in Paris a month ago during the chief executive's European tour.

Another ally in the Vietnam war, President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines, said en route to Washington that he had unspecified "urgent" matters he wanted to discuss with Nixon.

In addition to Ky and Marcos, those scheduled to visit the White House at Nixon's invitation were:

Prime Minister Mariano Rumor of Italy, John Gorton of Australia, Chung Il Kwon of South Korea, Marcello Caetano of Portugal and Suleiman Demirel of Turkey.

Also Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger of West Germany, the Shah of Iran, President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, Foreign Minister Joseph Luns of the Netherlands and former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan.

Today's talks followed a large diplomatic reception Nixon gave at the White House Monday night for the heads of state and other dignitaries who came for the Eisenhower state funeral.

Although Nixon talked with most of those attending the reception, the conversations apparently were social.

Mao Speaks At Communist Party Meeting

Chinese Reds in Peking Hold First
Session Since 1956

TOKYO (AP) — The congress of the Chinese Communist Party went into its first session since 1956 in Peking today and Chairman Mao Tse-tung gave an important address, Peking radio reported.

Red Chinese broadcasts have been saying for some that the congress—expected to approve a new constitution drafted at Mao's direction—was forthcoming soon.

The constitution names Defense Minister Lin Biao as Mao's successor and opens the way for appointment as well as election to leading organs of the party.

The radio said Lin was on the platform with Mao as the congress opened. Other officials on the platform included Premier Chou En-lai, Deputy Premier Liu Po-cheng, Chen Po-ta, a central committeeman who was chief of Mao's purge, and two influential Politburo members, Kang Shen and Tung Pi-wu.

Politburo Members

The broadcast said also on stage were two other Politburo members—Chou Yeh and Chen Yun—and, although they are not party officials, Mrs. Mao and two other leaders of the proletarian cultural revolution—Chang Chun chiao and Yao Wen-yuan.

This is the ninth congress. It was repeatedly delayed because of the convulsions of the proletarian revolution, or purge, that Mao began in 1966.

The purge resulted in the overthrow of President Liu Shao-chi, who was ousted from his government and party positions by the Central Committee last November.

China watchers generally assumed that because Liu had such a broad following in the party, Mao was forced to delay calling the congress. It is now assumed Liu's followers have been weeded out.

The broadcast said the congress, attended by 1,572 representatives, elected Mao as chairman, Lin as vice chairman and Chou as secretary-general. It adopted this agenda, the broadcast added:

- 1—Political report of the party Central Committee, by Lin
- 2—Revision of party by laws
- 3—Election of members of the Central Committee.

Political Bid Was 'Bitterest Moment'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (P) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower regarded his decision to run for president as his bitterest moment, but agreed to seek the office after being convinced it was his duty, according to Henry Cabot Lodge, who managed the 1952 campaign.

"If it became my duty to run for president," Eisenhower told Lodge in June, 1950, "I would do it. But it would be the bitterest moment of my life."

Lodge, then a Massachusetts senator, had gone to see the general at Columbia University, where Eisenhower served for a time as president. Ambassador Lodge, now U.S. representative at the Paris peace talks, told of the meeting today.

Foreign Policy Views

"I said that it might become his duty to run for president. I didn't think that Sen. Taft (the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio) could be elected. I considered that his foreign policy views were out of date."

"When I used the word 'duty' Eisenhower got up and walked up and down the room. And after he said he would do it but it would be his bitterest moment, he repeated again he would run if it proved to be his duty."

Lodge was not the first to ask Eisenhower to run for President. In fact, while he was running the allied war effort in Europe, both parties sought him out as a potential candidate.

There have been published reports that President Harry S. Truman offered the 1948 Democratic presidential nomination to Eisenhower. Truman reportedly offered to run as Eisenhower's vice presidential candidate.

Democratic Efforts

There were further efforts by the Democrats to get the general to head their ticket for the 1952 campaign.

To all these and other efforts Eisenhower said no in firm and seemingly complete tones.

In 1948, after public urgings by Leonard V. Finder, then publisher of the Manchester (N.H.) Evening Leader, that he run for president as a Republican, Eisenhower replied:

"I am not available for and could not accept nomination to high political office . . . It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when life-long professional soldiers, in absence of some obvious and overriding reasons, abstain from seeking high political office . . . My decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive . . . I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

But these disclaimers didn't stop Funder, now former publisher of the Sacramento (Calif.) Union, nor Lodge.

In 1952 Funder wrote a national magazine article urging Eisenhower to seek the 1952 GOP nomination and argued that circumstances had changed so that the general's 1948 reasons no longer applied.

Lodge and other moderate Republicans had continued their efforts after 1950 to make Eisenhower see his "duty."

Lodge said that he spoke to Eisenhower about running again when he visited him in September 1951 in Paris where Eisenhower, on leave as Columbia president, was organizing NATO forces.

In the Paris meeting, Lodge said, "I told him he had until January to make up his mind."

Day of Decision

"I'm glad I've got that much time," Eisenhower replied.

As the day of decision approached a group of Eisenhower backers met in New York in November, 1951, including New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential candidate in 1944 and 1948.

In January 1952, Lodge held a Sunday afternoon news conference. He said he was satisfied that Eisenhower was a Republican and had therefore entered the general's name in the New Hampshire GOP presidential primary.

"I went to see him in April 1952, and he came back in June and made a speech at Abilene, Kan. It was his first speech in a political context."

Fiery Blast Traps Miners

rioted at the tunnel entrances. The crowds calmed down later.

The mine is at Barroteran, with a population of 8,000 people, about 75 miles southwest of the Texas border town of Eagle Pass.

"It was a tremendous explosion, blowing parts of the mine entrance into the air," said Dr. Emilio Lopez of the Barroteran hospital, who witnessed the blast. "We have no injured. They were either all killed at the entrance or trapped below. The lucky ones had left."

"They were able to take out the bodies of some of the dead miners because they were on their way up and near the exit." The mining company is one of Mexico's biggest coal producers.

Earlier Rolando Villareal, the company's public relations officer, had reported that officials believed 305 miners were trapped. This figure later was reduced by company officials who made further checks.

Villareal said methane gas apparently had accumulated in one of the mine pockets and exploded at 5:45 p.m. shortly after a shift change. Three miners who had just finished work rushed back into the mine when the blast rocked houses in Barroteran. Only one came out, saying his companions were trapped by cave-ins.

Lopez said there was "a lot of confusion at first" and soldiers had to control the grief-stricken relatives. Later, "when they learned what had to be done, they calmed down and the soldiers were able to control the situation," he said.

Mine company spokesmen estimated rescue operations would take between 24 and 48 hours, but a Red Cross spokesman in Mexico City said: "If the men were very deep, it might take a week."

The Mexican government made available aircraft and supplies which were flown to the area shortly after midnight with additional Red Cross workers. The governor of Coahuila state, Bergeleo Berdusco, was on the scene supervising the rescue work.

Our God," the general's casket will be removed from the hearse and placed on the front porch of the two-story Eisenhower Library for a public memorial service expected to last about 25 minutes.

Near Library

The library is across the street from the white frame house where Eisenhower grew up and the Lincoln grade school which he attended.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. Robert H. MacAskill of the First Presbyterian church of Gettysburg, Pa., and the Rev. Dean Miller of Palm Desert, Calif., Community church.

Then the casket will be carried along the broad sidewalk to the tiny chapel about 100 yards west of the library to the tune of "Army Blue" and "Lead Kindly Light."

The coffin will be placed on a temporary wooden platform built over a sunken crypt some 15 feet inside the chapel door. The body will lie next to that of the Eisenhowers' first-born son, Doud Dwight Eisenhower, who died of scarlet fever at the age of 3 in 1921.

Burial Uniform

Eisenhower's burial uniform of officer pink trousers and the short jacket he made famous bears only three of his many decorations—the Army Distinguished Service Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Navy Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit.

There is room inside the chapel for only about 80 invited persons. No news coverage of the 15-minute final rites there will be permitted. A loudspeaker will carry words of the clergyman—yet to be chosen—to those outside.

Just before the benediction, a battery of cannon placed east of the library will fire a 21-gun salute. Following the benediction, a rifle squad will fire the traditional three volleys and a bugler will play "Taps."

Folded Flag

Then "West Point, Alma Mater" will be played and as the last notes fade away, Lt. Gen. V. P. Mock, 5th Army commander, will present the folded flag from the casket to Mrs. Eisenhower with the simple words uttered at all military funerals:

"This flag is presented to you on behalf of a grateful nation as a token of appreciation for the honorable and faithful service rendered by your loved one."

The strains of "America the Beautiful" and "The Old Rugged Cross" will sound as the family and guests leave the chapel about 11:45 a.m.

And Dwight David Eisenhower—known to Abilene as a boy who dreamed of being a locomotive engineer but instead became commander of the greatest military force ever assembled and president of the United States—will be home for his final rest.

Czech Victory Celebration in Ice Hockey Condemned by Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet try's only daily sports newspaper kept up its new per. reprinted an article in the press campaign against Czechoslovakia Monday complaining about the Czechoslovak reaction to the games.

Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star), the armed forces newspaper, reported that Marshal Andrei Grechko, the Soviet defense minister, flew to Czechoslovakia Monday to visit Soviet headquarters there.

The report did not mention the Kremlin's current displeasure with the Czechoslovak leadership.

The Hungarian Communist party paper Nepszabadsag today picked up Soviet attacks against liberal Czechoslovak politician Jozef Smrkovsky and said the demonstrations in Prague ranked "with the most dangerous of all right-wing actions so far."

It said Czechoslovak nationalism "through its potentially threatening existence represents a danger not only for Czechoslovak-Soviet relations, but also for the relations of Czechoslovakia and the other Socialist countries."

Picking up allegations aired by the Moscow press, Nepszabadsag said: "The most startling and incomprehensible aspect of the whole affair is that this anti-Soviet demonstration has been assisted by the personal appearance of a politician of the caliber of Jozef Smrkovsky."

But the report was denied today by the Czechoslovak Parliament in Prague.

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda charged that the celebration in Prague after Czechoslovakia defeated Russia in the second game of the World Hockey Championships "was a nationalistic demonstration, organized in advance, that had a far-reaching political purpose."

After the Czechoslovak victories, excited demonstrators attacked Russian occupation facilities across Czechoslovakia, smashing barracks windows and setting vehicles afire. Crowds in Prague attacked the offices of the Soviet airline Aeroflot. Fifty-one Czechoslovak policemen were reported injured trying to halt the outbreaks.

"Nationalist Psychosis"

Komsomolskaya Pravda said, the Czechoslovak press, radio and television encouraged a "nationalist psychosis" over the games. It noted that Czechoslovak television coverage was interrupted during the playing of the Soviet national anthem after the Russians won the championship; it called the interruption a "badly camouflaged gesture."

Color Helps Express Individuality

BY CAROL HANSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Color is one of the pleasures of life. It plays an important role in almost everything we do. It keys a safety code, outlines zones or marks department materials. In certain mechanical operations, we're told to push a red button, then a green one — and use the yellow one only for emergencies.
Color is a key to the seasons. We think of a white winter and a green summer — we think of the many colors of autumn and the changing colors in spring.
Each of us, however, uses color in a different way, and because of this, it helps us express our individuality.
Clothing, too, is a natural medium for expressing this individuality and color can not be separated from any of the components that comprise clothing design, Miss Lenore Landry, textile and clothing specialist of the University Extension, Madison, told a gathering of women Wednesday afternoon at the Court House Annex.

Textile, Clothing Specialist
In the third of a series of four lectures being sponsored by the Outagamie County Extension Office, Miss Landry spoke about the many roles color plays in our lives.
To the poet, she said, color is a way of describing a scene, to the musician, color is used to express mood, and to the physicist color is part of spectrum formed when a wedge-shaped piece of glass — a prism — is placed in a beam of white light.

"Color is a wonderful phenomenon," Miss Landry continued, "and there is a great deal to be learned and understood about it."
Part of the science of color involves our preference for one color, shade or tint over another.
Complementary Color
Miss Landry asked her audience if any of them had ever met a friend and thought how well she looked that day. Part of this impression may have been because her color choice that day was particularly complementary to her own coloring.
She also talked about how our first impression of a person is often the color he or she is wearing.
Turning to the theory of color, the textile specialist reminded the women that color is one of the most important fashion components and, therefore, each of us must understand color in order to be well dressed.
All color, she said, comes from white sunlight. When light is absent, everything — every color — becomes black, indicating this absence of light.
Primary Colors
She then spoke about the color wheel, talking of the three primary colors — red, yellow and blue — and their relationship to the resulting secondary colors.
Colors have dimension — warmth or coolness, lightness or darkness, and brightness and dullness.
"Everyone can wear every color," she said. "It's just a matter of finding the right value, the right intensity."
She reminded the women

Egg Shell Art Built on Tradition

For a Table Centerpiece, make a wreath of fresh greens on a chicken-wire form. Set your Easter dinner dessert in the center.

BY ELLEN R. KORT
Special to The Post-Crescent

Egg-decorating fun at Easter time appeals to adults and children alike. It is a tradition that goes back through centuries. Even before the Christian era, eggs were decorated for spring festivals — as symbols of the blossoming world.

Sing a song of springtime and try some eye-catching decorations — sure to become family favorites. These Easter novelties are simple to make, and will last from one year to the next if properly stored.

Start with white, fresh eggs, and before you decorate, scrub eggs in a detergent solution, rinse well and dry thoroughly. You may use hard-boiled eggs, but it's easier to work with empty shells. You can't keep hard-boiled eggs too long; so after they've been sufficiently admired, remove the shells, and use the eggs for a salad that night or the very next day.

You Might Find It Fun to take a carton of hand-decorated eggs as a surprise gift to an Easter hostess, a neighbor or a hospital patient. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Your Problems Trip to Hospital Embarrassing

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can a physician say a word or two about travestism? I was born, and raised in a small town in Maine. I had never heard of homosexuality, let alone travestism, until I was in high school. Even then it seemed unreal and somewhat disgusting.

In college I became vastly enlightened and in medical school I changed some of my concepts completely. But it wasn't until I did my internship that I really had my eyes opened up. Night duty at the hospital was liberal education. The first year, three prominent men in the community were brought in as emergencies. One had a heart attack, two were in automobile accidents. We discovered they were wearing ladies' underwear when we dressed them for examination. These men were married and had attractive families. There had never been a breath of scandal about any of them. I hope you see a moral in this story and that you will put it into words. — New Englander

Dear New: I see two morals. First, a person can have an oddball quirk and still function well and keep his nuttiness a deep, dark secret. Second: If any of you fellas out there have a hankering for ladies' underwear, consider the possibility that you might get hit by a truck and wind up in the emergency room.

DEAR ANN: Once a week six of us guys get together to play poker. The stakes are small and nobody can lose more than five bucks a night — that's the ceiling. We are all 16 and 17 and our parents approve of the games. (We take turns playing at each other's homes.) A good friend of mine who wins consistently has been cheating. I've been clocking him for three months and I'm positive he shorts the pot, pulls out too much when he's "making change" or calling back a bet. Sometimes he "forgets" to throw in his bet and needs to be reminded. I don't think anyone else is on to him and I don't want to be a stoolie, but I hate to see this guy act so cheap and dishonest. What should I do? — Keen Observer

Dear Keen: Tell him you suspect a couple of the guys in the game are cheating. Describe the gimmicks and ask if he will keep an eye open along with you.

If he doesn't straighten up and fly right after that ploy, nail him after the next game and tell him if he cheats again you're going to let the whole table know he's kinky.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Claude and I will be married in May. He was classified 4-F and rejected for the service. I was a WAC and loved every minute of it. I want to get married in my WAC uniform. Claude is against it. What is your view? — Lansing, Mich.

Dear Mich.: Do you want to be a bride or a drill sergeant? If it's the former, the uniform of the day is a wedding gown or a pastel suit. Shape up, Toots, or Claude may decide, "Hell, no — I won't go!"

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Copyright, 1969)

Accumulate Shells

For Easter eggs to keep, pierce both ends of a raw egg with a sharp hat pin, skewer, or small drill. Hold the pierced egg over a bowl and blow hard into the larger end of the egg. Let the empty shells dry, then rinse them in hot water and dry before coloring. Empty eggshells can be accumulated when you use eggs for scrambling or in baking during the next few days. Store the shells in egg cartons.

To color eggs you can use commercial Easter-egg dyes, following the package directions. Colored enamel paint gives more intense and unusual colors than dyes, and may be purchased in small quantities at variety stores. Colored nail polish, or colored spray enamels also give a high gloss. Whatever the method, apply two coats of dye or paint to the eggs. The shells are porous and tend to "drink in" color as they dry.

To decorate eggs with hand-painted designs, use poster paints, india ink, or felt tipped marking pens.

Paste adhesive tape in cut-out designs on eggs before you dye them; then peel off the tape — the undyed pattern is white. Accent the design by outlining it with black.

Cut Out Flowers

Cut out tiny flowers or designs from old valentines, magazines, or seed packets, and glue on eggs. Flocked gift-wrap cutouts also can be used.

Tissue gift wrap paper which comes in a variety of pastels and colors is an easy way to transform an egg into a work of art, or pop-art! When moistened with glue, the tissue stretches snugly over rounded surfaces.

Decorative needlework accessories — sequins, rhinestones, seed pearls, embroidered ribbon, rick rack, and lace can be used to create "jewelled eggs." Lightly pencil in the places where you want the trimmings to go, so they will be evenly spaced. The sky is the limit with these fancies.

Paste two small streamers of ribbon and a notary's seal on a pure-white egg. Looks ambassadorial!

Eggs can be trimmed with yarn or string designs and then spray painted. If they are streaked lightly with gold or burnt umber, they acquire an "antique" look.

An ordinary curtain ring glued to the bottom or side of the egg you are decorating provides it's own stand, and prevents the egg from rolling.

Light, decorated shells are also easy to hang. Attach loops of thread or ribbon to the top with casein glue. An Easter mobile can be made by drawing a ribbon through the holes in hollow eggs, and hanging them from a wire hanger or a mobile frame.

When you're dyeing the family eggs, try spraying one a solid gold. The "golden egg" will be the high point of the egg hunt on Easter morning, and the finder receives a prize of something good to eat — which he must share with the rest of the family.

You will want to use your decorated eggs in many ways; they make lively place cards or favors, or as the center of interest in early-spring flower arrangements.

Nice Surprise Gift

Take a carton of hand-decorated eggs as a surprise gift to an Easter hostess, a neighbor, or a hospital patient.

For an Easter table make a pyramid of hard-boiled eggs, dyed one color, on a glass compote or cake stand. If you like, dye each row of eggs a different color. Greens or artificial flowers can be tucked into spaces between the rows of eggs.

For another table centerpiece, make a wreath of fresh greens on a chicken-wire form. Wind it with bright ribbon, and tie or wire on pastel dyed eggs. Set your Easter dinner dessert in the center, and you have a marvelous centerpiece and dessert, all in one.

The traditional Easter egg tree is a thorny branch, sprayed white, and set in a pot of earth to hold it securely. The branch represents Christ's crown of thorns, and is hung with decorated eggs. The eggs may be hand-painted with Easter symbols, and trimmed with tiny tassels clipped from inexpensive cotton fringe. Could anything be easier, or Easter-ier?

All Fooling Aside, Would You Believe It's April?

EDITOR'S NOTE — What can you expect from a month that starts out with All Fools' Day? Spring, hopefully, for one thing. Here are some other views of the fourth month of the year.

BY JOY STILLEY
Associated Press Writer

"April. April.
"Laugh thy girlish laughter;
"Then, the moment after,
"Weep thy girlish tears..."
Sir William Watson,
"April Song"

they bring the flowers that bloom in May." April has been celebrated in song and poetry.

In the 14th century, Geoffrey Chaucer wrote in "Canterbury Tales":
"Whan that Aprille with his shoures soote
"The droghte of March hath perced to the roote...
"Thanne longen folk to go on pilgrimages..."

And Robert Browning spoke feelingly in "Home - Thoughts from Abroad."
"Oh, to be in England
"Now that April's there..."

But there is a darker side too. Along with the rain clouds that gather in April, war clouds have repeatedly made their appearance. In that month the Revolutionary War began with the Battle of Concord and Lexington in 1775; the Civil War started with the firing on Fort Sumter in 1861; the Spanish-American War began with the ultimatum to Spain in 1898; and America entered World War II when Congress declared war on Germany in April 1917.

It's a big month in history in other respects also. George Washington was inaugurated as first president in 1789; Paul Revere's famous ride took place April 18, 1775; the British burned Washington in 1812; the U.S. flag was adopted by Congress in 1818; Abraham Lincoln was assassinated in 1865; Germany signed an unconditional surrender pact in 1945 and that same month the United Nations was organized.

Celebrities Birth Month
Four U.S. presidents were born in April; Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, James Buchanan and Ulysses S. Grant. So were Washington Irving, Booker T. Washington, John Pierpont Morgan, Adolf Hitler, John James Audubon, Samuel F. B. Morse, Guglielmo Marconi, Charles Evans Hughes, Hans Christian Anderson, El Greco, Benjamin Disraeli, Charlemagne, Marcus Aurelius Antonius and Queen Isabella I of Spain.

If You Assume This Position without a winter coat on in the Fox Valley, you might get a snowflake in your eye and a blooming case of double pneumonia on this April 1, and that's no joke. But spring has really arrived at the New York Botanical Garden, where early tulips and daffodils dazzle at the International Flower Show. (AP Newsfeature Photo)

Sheinwold Bad Break Handled at First Trick

If you try to persuade the average bridge player not to win the first trick of his long suit with the ace, he may just look the other way. If you ask him to duck the first trick of his long suit when he has both the ace and king, he will send for a strait jacket and a man in a white coat.

The average good player wins the first trick with the king of hearts and draws two rounds of trumps with the king and queen. Then he takes the top diamonds and ruffs a diamond. If the six missing diamonds break 3-3, South will win all 13 tricks.

When the diamonds fail to break 3-3, South must abandon the suit for lack of enough entries to the dummy. Instead, South must lead a trump to dummy's ace in order to try the club finesse.

Unfortunately, the finesse loses. South must give up a club and a heart, and all is lost save honors.

Better Chance
After winning the first heart and drawing trumps with the king and queen, South should lead a diamond from his hand and should duck in dummy. East overtakes with the jack of diamonds in order to return the ten of clubs.

Now South should put up the ace of clubs because the chance of a reasonable break in diamonds (either 3-3 or 4-2) is greater than the chance of a successful finesse in clubs. Declarer leads a diamond to the ace, discards a heart on the king of diamonds and ruffs a diamond.

Dummy's last diamond becomes established despite the 4-2 break, and South gets to dummy with the ace of trumps to discard the queen of clubs on the fifth diamond.

Idea of an Afterlife Baffles Man

EDITOR'S NOTE—Even the apostles could hardly believe the phenomenon of Christ's resurrection. So, too, modern man is skeptical about the possibility of life after death. This second of five Easter articles deals with this subject.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A New York City girl, visiting a Western ranch, stepped outside in the late evening. She was startled. Separated for the first time from the city illumination that veils the nighttime sky, she saw in the blackness what for her was a grand, new thing—the spangled dome of stars.

"Look, look at them!" she cried in wonder. "I never knew there were so many, and so big, and so close!"

In the stark darkness, she encountered a grandeur she had never realized existed. It was as if she had entered a strange and unknown environment, expecting only inky gloom, but instead she beheld astonishing glory.

In a way to those associated with Jesus, His death was like that. They had resigned themselves to the worst. They had given up, drained of hope, plunged into an alien midnight. But there, a new fire glowed. On an impenetrable horizon there emerged an unsuspected star.

Light in Darkness

"The light shines in the darkness," says the gospel of John, "and the darkness has not overcome it."

But it was no easy arrangement, no pleasant, automatic procedure. It was couched in doubt, desperation and pain. Jesus, in partnership with humanity to its utmost extremity, went to the grave.

"Crucified, dead and buried," the ancient church creed puts it. It was a somber affair, with no false heroics about it.

"My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" He cried in the words of the psalmist as He succumbed to the torment of six hours on the cross. "It is finished," and His straining body fell limp.

To make sure He was dead, a Roman legionnaire plunged a spear into His side, and the blood, drained away, soaking back into the earth that gave it substance.

"When you're dead, you're mentally conditioned attitude. Resurrection doesn't fit the pattern. From a naturalistic standpoint, it's wild. The mind-set of the apostles, like much of thinking today, was against it. They were 'perplexed' . . . amazed . . . did not believe. The accounts say. Even after He first appeared to them, they 'still disbelieved for joy, and wondered.'"

Basic Helplessness

And it is, so far as mortal man can make it. There, at last, he faces a no longer deniable fact—his basic helplessness. Yet Jesus saw His passage there as "the door" through which others could find continuity beyond it, and their fullest stature.

"I am the Resurrection and the Life, he who believes in Me, though he die, yet shall he live. But was He right? Did He tell it like it is?"

"If Christ has not been raised," Paul wrote, "Then our preaching is in vain and your faith is in vain."

Yet it seems absurd, as far as laboratory laws or tests can match Empirical reasoning rejects it in an age of faith in computers, rockets, the pill, a soaring GNP and stormy drives for social reconstruction.

Contemporary theology down-plays consideration of the subject in the modern surge of church efforts to serve human justice and welfare in the present day.

The afterlife is not a going topic, even in religious circles. Sermons widely avoid it, except for Easter's infectiously hopeful mood. Surveys of beliefs about it show a growing uncertainty and ambiguity.

Rigid Barriers

"Rigid barriers between sacred and secular realities are breaking down," writes a Catholic Bible scholar, the Rev. William B. Frazier. "Religious attitudes and values are being remodeled with the hope of stimulating Christians to greater respect for and participation in the secular order."

And that, from a Biblical perspective, is where the primary task lies in the course of human history.

Yet, at bottom, the ancient preoccupation with death and its imponderables lingers on, a shadow behind people's activism, a brushed-aside question, a hidden hope, a plaguing doubt.

And doubt, even disbelief, was the original reaction to the post-mortem events involving Jesus. It was, and is, the normal, env-ronmentally conditioned attitude. Resurrection doesn't fit the pattern. From a naturalistic standpoint, it's wild. The mind-set of the apostles, like much of thinking today, was against it. They were "perplexed" . . . amazed . . . did not believe. The accounts say. Even after He first appeared to them, they "still disbelieved for joy, and wondered."

The Book of Revelation calls Him "the Living One . . . who died," yet lives, — God's true man Who underwent man's inhumanity to break its deadly hold and to share His experience with His fellow men—both the cross and the resurrection. "Whoever loses his life for My sake will find it."

It's an odd combination—life in losing it.

Divine Goodness

In Jesus's crucifixion, Christian tradition holds that divine goodness absorbed the results of man's wrongdoing, providing mercy and forgiveness to him, and offering him a new chance to become what he was meant to be.

In dying for the love of man, Jesus is regarded as having invested a new, purging quality into the human nature. He shared, a selfless relationship running counter to the self-drive that distorts individual lives and societies.

And out of that death, that utter act of devotion, came the amazing disclosure, the resurrection. In darkness emerged "the bright and morning star."

A fact? A fable. It seems foolish, Paul writes, a "stumbling block" and "folly." "God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong."

"It's hard to talk about the resurrection without losing your audience," says a Lutheran theologian, the Rev. Dr. George W. Forell.

"We've been afraid of the paradox," writes a Presbyterian clergyman, the Rev. Dr. David H. C. Read. We have tried to reduce it to present partial knowledge, expunging "anything that doesn't make sense to the modern secular mind."

But it obviously wasn't that kind of occurrence even then. It boggled the brain and still does, leaping ahead of the facts men now possess and control, offending pride in their own mastery, rearing imperious doubts.

"Doubt, and not certitude, is our human situation," wrote the late Protestant theologian Paul Tillich, adding that divine reality would not be that at all if man could possess and verify it like another piece of the world.

Common Doubts

The common doubts about the resurrection arise, not from insufficient historical data, but because it violates man's uniform, ordinary experience and also the powerfully dominating hypotheses of science at the present stage.

Yet, contrary to popular impressions, it doesn't violate the most advanced scientific approach, which is increasingly open to the unexpected, the incongruous, the upsetting or previously assumed conclusions.

Actually, "a scientific training is helpful in understanding and accepting the gospel," says nuclear physicist John A. McIntyre, since both involve puzzling factors and paradoxes. "A scientist doesn't throw away a good theory because of difficulties. We expect them—the greater the reality, the more the difficulties."

So-called "laws of nature" can be formulated or reformulated to cope with any eventuality, and would-be miracles are transformed automatically into natural occurrences the moment science gets on the track of them," says philosopher R. F. Holland.

Yet science so far has no figures or formulas to fit the singular phenomenon of the resurrection, and its statistical methods the very cells, bones and tissues of his anatomy are completely changed many times in his lifetime, being totally replaced about every seven years, leaving him the same person with a new body.

His conscious life is considerably shorter than his psychic life, being reduced about a third by sleep, and often more on the verge of death, when psychic functions seem to abandon coordination with the old body.

Powerful Interplay

Yet the powerful interplay of psychic and physical elements in man has swept aside the previous mechanistic views of human biology, recognizing the controlling interrelationship of the material and immaterial makeup.

It seems a reflection of the ancient Biblical idea of resurrection of the whole personality, spirit and matter, a concept rooted in the Old Testament and vividly dramatized in the New. It was no mere flight of a disembodied soul, as conceived in various Eastern cults, but the reconstitution of a whole man.

"Behold, I make all things new."

The hints, clues and intimations of it accumulate, but the old, aching uncertainties remain. Man glumly doubts it. "I am going fishing," the bewildered apostle Peter said. And the others, unable to assimilate the event, also sought respite in the commonplace.

"We will go with you," they said. But they couldn't shake it off.

(Tomorrow: The on-the-scene evidence.)

Yet even within those bounds, other, forming an invisible continuum, and medical research and death have become ever more baffling, indeterminate and ambiguous. Processes merge into one another. Man has long realized that

FRED KNIPPEL ...AND A FEW OF HIS LIFE SAVERS

It all began in spring 1967. Fred Knippel, a salesman for Imperial Lithographing Corporation, became aware something was wrong with him. Fred went to see his doctor. Diagnosis: Kidney failure. Prognosis: 6 months to a year to live.

July, 1967. A break. At St. Luke's Hospital, Milwaukee, Fred became the first patient to benefit from their new "artificial kidney machine." 4 hours a day, twice a week, he underwent hemodialysis therapy. Cost? $400 per week. To the Knippels' surprise, Blue Cross covered it in full.

February, 1968. A dramatic decision. A kidney transplant operation. The donor: Fred's courageous sister. And on March 1 — 21 days after surgery, Fred was back at work. "Recalled to life," his gratitude knows no bounds.

About Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Fred says this: "I always thought they were like any insurance. With limits. Any minute, I expected to hear their coverage had gone as far as it could with me. The call never came. I learned later that Blue Cross and Blue Shield never cancelled anyone for the size of their claim. My portion of the hospital and doctor bills came to about $14,000 — Blue Cross and Blue Shield paid most of it."

Comments Carroll Brussat, President, Imperial Lithographing Corp., "The experience of Fred Knippel leaves no doubt in our minds as to the real worth of our Blue Cross and Blue Shield program. Whether our health care needs are routine or catastrophic, this is protection that works realistically, as it keeps pace with the rising costs of medical and hospital progress."

Jury Returns Guilty Verdict In Drug Case

Brief Deliberation On Marijuana Possession Charge

After less than 20 minutes' deliberation, a Circuit Court jury of eight women and four men late this morning found Elwin P. (Perry) Medow, 22, 2028 N. Superior St., guilty of marijuana possession.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell ordered a pre-sentence investigation by the State Department of Health and Social Services, and, at the request of Medow's attorney, allowed the Appleton man to remain free on a signature bond pending sentencing. Parnell did not set a date for sentencing.

Trial, which had been delayed several times pending hearings on pre-trial motions, started Monday in Circuit Court. Testimony ended Monday afternoon, but closing arguments and jury instructions were delayed until today.

Just prior to trial, Parnell denied a defense motion seeking suppression of evidence seized from Medow's car.

Outagamie County and Appleton police, armed with a search warrant, stopped Medow's station wagon at Superior Street and Glendale Avenue, near the Medow home, about 3:15 a.m. Sept. 7.

Material found in a vial in Medow's car was taken to the Wisconsin State Crime Laboratory, where it was found to be marijuana.

Woolworth Objects to Alley Closing Proposal

The F.W. Woolworth Co. has become the first to object to the city's plan to vacate an alley to make way for construction of a multi-million dollar Gimbel's Department Store on College Avenue.

Don E. Grogan, representing the firm's Midwest regional office located at Medina, Minn., wrote a letter to city officials Monday.

The objection at this point has no legal status, officials said. However, they indicated the Woolworth Company complaint "came as a surprise" because the matter had been discussed in detail months ago.

No Objection

There was no objection to the alley vacation when the city plan commission voted favorably on the question following a public hearing. A final hearing will be held by the city council Wednesday night.

Grogan said his firm received a copy of the resolution calling for vacation of the alley, including 189 feet abutting the rear of the Woolworth Store at 108-114 E. College Avenue.

"We herewith wish to voice our objections to said vacating until such time as the City of Appleton can provide us with a plan assuring us of guaranteed access to the rear of our store for purposes of receiving delay freight," Grogan wrote. "Such access should be a through plan."

Alternate Plan

Grogan said his company recognized the necessity for modernizing and rebuilding the downtown areas, but felt provision should also be made to insure present occupants have certain guarantees.

"It is not our intention to delay the planned project," Grogan said of Gimbel's store.

He asked city officials to provide an alternate freight receiving access route plan. The matter will be taken up by the city council Wednesday night.

April 1st News Capsule

Fox River Ideal for Beach?

Major news stories poured into The Post-Crescent's editorial department in great quantity this April 1st.

Here are some of the major items:

—Reacting to the findings of a recent study by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission which state the Fox River is neither contaminated or polluted, commission chairman Gordon Bubolz announced he is donating $50,000 to the city of Appleton to begin construction of bathing facilities on the Fox River near the College Avenue bridge.

—Faced with a deadline imposed by the state for improving their jail facilities, the Outagamie County Board's law enforcement committee has recommended the purchase of Appleton's abandoned old McKinley School building. The building will be remodeled for $500,000 to provide for modern single rooms for all prisoners. Each room will have separate hygiene facilities, an inner spring mattress bed and a color television set.

—In a related development, the Appleton board of education decided to donate old McKinley School to the county.

—The Lawrence University chapter of SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) voted today to invest all of its surplus funds in Dow Chemical Co. stock.

National Holiday

—The Appleton chapter of the John Birch Society today passed a resolution which suggests that the anniversary of the assassination of Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King be proclaimed a national holiday.

—In a cooperative move to show the public there is no ill will between their men, Appleton Police Chief Earl O. Wolff today made all sheriff's department personnel "honorary detectives" and supplied them with a list of all informants, and Sheriff Calvin L. Spice, in a mutual show of good will, presented each Appleton policeman with gold-plated badges and brand new deputy cards.

—Explaining that the mechanics and tax base of their government units are insufficient to meet the complex problems of urbanization, Menasha Town Chairman Roland Kampe and Grand Chute Town Chairman Tom Thorson today outlined a consolidation plan which would unite the two towns with the cities of Appleton and Menasha.

—Looking over budget proposals for 1969-70 by the Appleton Board of Education, Mayor George Buckley said "not enough money has been set aside for future building needs." The mayor urged that an additional $2.5 million be placed into the budget to allow for needed classroom space which will result from the transfer of parochial school children to public schools.

—A special committee of the Outagamie County Board, which is studying reapportionment should also be made to provide an alternate freight receiving access route plan. The matter will be taken up by the city council Wednesday night.

Voter Turnout Unspectacular

Appleton Officials Stick to Prediction Of 13,000 Ballots

Appleton's noontime vote total today was 2,489 — about the same pace set during the comparable 1967 off-year election.

With 10 per cent of the city's registered voters having gone to the polls over a five-hour period, officials were still holding to their prediction of a 13,000 turnout.

The polls opened at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Local interest is centered on school board and city council elections.

Also on the ballot are statewide referendum questions and a State Supreme Court justice race.

Absentee Ballots

City Clerk Eldon Broehm said his office, in addition to the ballots cast at the 20 ward stations, had received 286 absentee ballots to be opened tonight.

Based on a statewide vote count roundup by the Associated Press, cities were reporting higher or lower than average turnouts.

Appleton was the lone exception with a status quo total, compared with two years ago.

As expected, the 19th Ward led with 270 votes. It is the largest in the city.

Residents are voting for three of the six school board candidates on the ballot.

In the wards, there are six contests for city council positions.

No Payment Yet From VTE-12

Vocational School Still Unsold

Appleton has not sold its vocational school building to Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 and the city has no idea when the $205,000 payment will be made, it was learned Monday night.

Originally, VTE-12 agreed to buy the building at the $205,000 appraisal price but there have been delays.

The matter was discussed during a meeting of the city council's finance committee at the city hall.

Four aldermen — William Wachtendonk (3rd), James Bethke (9th), Glenn Thompson (13th) and Arthur Hoolihan (11th) — recently submitted a resolution asking for an explanation as to where the proceeds of the vocational building sale appeared in the 1969 city budget on the revenue side.

The committee voted to receive and file the resolution.

rate was being lowered, adding that because this would not be non-recurring income, the tax rate would go up automatically in 1970.

High Court Upsets Fond du Lac Area Sewage District

MADISON (AP)—The Wisconsin Supreme Court today overturned a lower court decision which would have established a metropolitan sewerage district including all of the city and part of the Town of Fond du Lac.

In reversing a 1968 Fond du Lac County Court decision, the high court also held that a state statute which permits the courts to establish the boundaries of a sewerage district is an "unlawful delegation of legislative authority."

The decision, written by Justice Leo B. Hanley, noted that when areas adjacent to an incorporated city are allowed to take advantage of metropolitan services without becoming part of the city, "the growth of the cities is likely to be forever stifled, and the residents of metropolitan areas will be forever carrying an inequitable percentage of the tax load."

In acknowledging "the hidden problem presented," Hanley said it was not to be solved by the courts, but through legislation.

The court specifically took issue with a portion of the law which would allow the courts to decide the "necessity" of a proposed sewerage plan and what is "best" or "should not be." These, said Hanley, are political questions and not matters of fact.

In its opinion, the court made no attempt to settle the question of whether the city or the town contributed more to the pollution problem of the southern tip of Lake Winnebago.

Police Seek Boys Who Leave Car

Appleton police are seeking two boys who abandoned a stolen car at W. Wisconsin Avenue and N. Superior Street about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The 1955 auto is owned by Ron McCann, 141 W. Park Ridge Lane. He said the car apparently was taken from alongside a service station at W. Wisconsin Avenue and N. Oneida Street, earlier Monday.

The boys abandoned the car on another service station driveway, and ran west on Wisconsin Avenue. Police were given descriptions of the pair.

Continuances Granted For Youths Charged With Stealing Auto

Continuances were granted in Outagamie County Court Branch Monday for two Milwaukee youths charged with taking a car owned by a Medina man on Feb. 26.

Chris D. Nelson and James W. Wingers, both 18, are free on bonds. They have a court-appointed attorney. Judge Nick F. Schaefer, at the request of the attorney, continued the case to April 15 to allow the attorney further time to check into the matter.

Sheriff's investigators allege the youths took a 1963 auto owned by David Gruber, from the Gruber home. The car was recovered in Hibbing, Minn. There was some damage to the vehicle.

Nelson and Wingers were brought here from Milwaukee to face the charges.

State Patrol Check On Vehicle Defects Set for Wednesday

A State Patrol motor vehicle inspection team will be in Appleton Wednesday.

The team will check as many cars as possible for safety defects at Pierce Park from 8 p.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m.

About six minutes are required to inspect each car. In case of inclement weather, the inspection will be cancelled.

Woman Hurt In Collision Dies Today

OSHKOSH — A 51-year-old Sparta woman, who was injured in a head-on collision Sunday on State 21 in the Town of Algoma, died at 10 a.m. today at Mercy Medical Center, according to Winnebago County Coroner Art C. Miller.

The woman was Ruth Thobaden, route 2. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Harold, 53, which collided with a car operated by Reece E. Dreyfus, route 1, Redgranite. Harold Thobaden remains at Mercy where he is being treated for a fractured hip.

Miller said that Mrs. Thobaden's back was broken in the accident, but that an autopsy to be performed today will determine the exact cause of her death.

The death of Mrs. Thobaden is counted as the third traffic fatality this year in Winnebago County, Miller said.

Squad Car Damaged When It Strikes Deer

An Outagamie County Sheriff's Department squad car sustained about $250 damage in a collision with a deer early Monday.

Patrolman Richard VanLysel, 27, 1718½ N. Superior St., said he was westbound on Outagamie County Trunk S. 3½ miles east of New London, when three deer ran onto the roadway. He said he missed the first two deer but struck and killed the third one.

The front of the 1968 auto was damaged.

Offers Explanation

Finance Director David Champion silenced critics when he explained $115,000 of the estimated sales income was included in the 1969 budget, and the remainder will be used to offset the 1970 budget levy.

"If we don't get the money this year yet, then we will be short the $105,000 on the income side of the 1969 budget," Champion warned.

However, he said recent talks between city and VTE-12 representatives may have cleared up the roadblock.

Champion explained it would not have been feasible to include the entire $205,000 sales price income as a 1969 budget offset to make it appear the tax

Goes Hunting For Apartment - The One He Lost

A former Appleton resident couldn't move into his new apartment in Phoenix, Ariz. over the weekend because he lost it.

Charles Rowland, 48, sold his photo finishing business here and flew to Arizona and checked into a Phoenix hotel.

The same day, Rowland found an apartment he liked and paid one month's advance rent. But he drove away without noting the address.

After 14 hours driving around the city to find the apartment building on the day he was supposed to move, Rowland notified a local paper of his plight.

The apartment manager read the article and called Rowland.

The apartment is two blocks from Rowland's hotel.

Couple Fined for Bad Conduct After Family Disturbance

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dexter, 610 N. Owaisa St., were each fined $25 and costs or six days in jail Tuesday after they pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct.

Appleton police said they were called to the Dexters' apartment several times Monday on reports of family disturbances. At 11 a.m. Monday, the fire department rescue squad was called to the apartment when Dexter, 30 reported that his 35-year-old wife had collapsed.

However, the woman was not transported to the hospital. The couple was taken to the county jail after police were summoned to the apartment again at 10 p.m.

Mrs. Dexter was taken by ambulance from the jail to Appleton Memorial Hospital about 11:40 p.m., after reportedly suffering some type of seizure. However, she was returned to jail early Tuesday.

Record Lows Registered as Mercury Dips

Fox Citizens are shivering in the wake of record low temperatures the last three days in March.

A record low of 16, set March 31, 1936, was broken Monday when the reading dipped down to 7. A record low of 10, set on March 30, 1964, was replaced by a low of 6. An all-time low of 9, set March 28, 1964, was edged out by an 8-degree temperature.

Traditional April showers were predicted for the Fox Cities today, preceding cooler temperatures Wednesday. Although there is a 40 per cent chance of showers tonight, forecasts show an 80 per cent chance for rainless skies Wednesday.

Other state low temperatures today were Park Falls and Superior 17; Eau Claire and Green Bay 22; Wausau 23; Madison and La Crosse 26. Lone Rock and Racine 27, Milwaukee 28 and Beloit 29.

A New York-headquartered firm with manufacturing divisions in the U.S. and abroad today acquired exclusive worldwide licensing rights to patented processes of the Riverside Paper Corp., here.

Black Clawson Company, the largest machinery manufacturer in the world of pulp, paper and allied equipment, entered into an agreement for Riverside's process of recovering polyethylene coated paper and board.

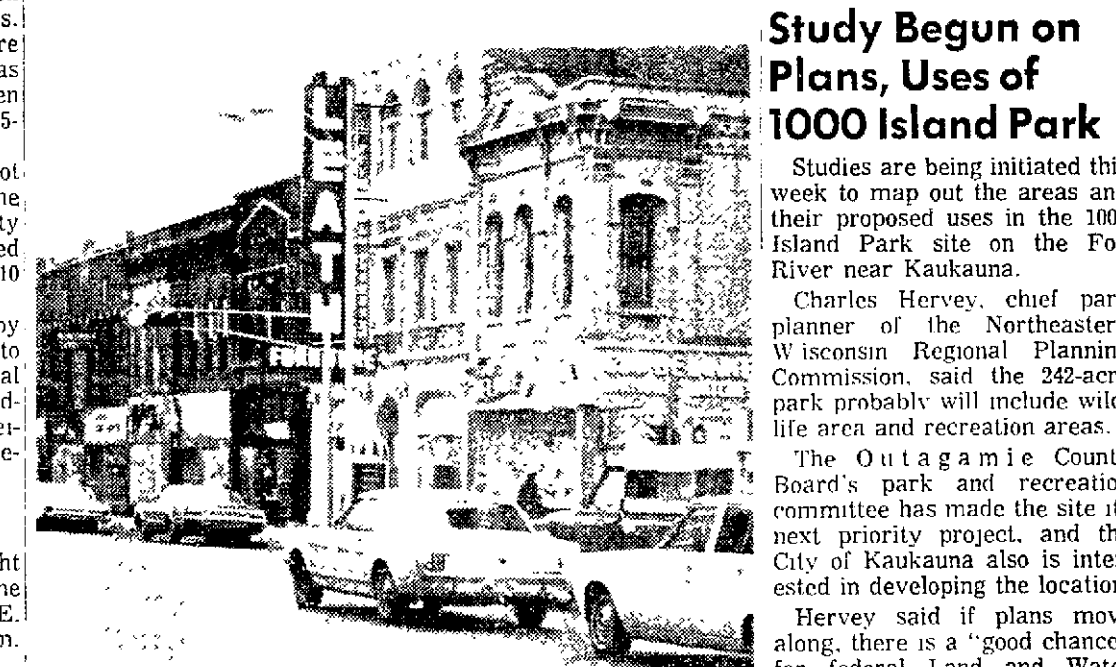

Last month, Riverside officials announced a new breakthrough in the polyethylene recovery process, developed locally by its research department.

Signing the agreement this morning, specifying that Riverside will make its plant available to Black Clawson's customers for the purpose of running tests, along with establishing new process centers in the United States and other countries, were Harry G. Davis, Riverside president, and R. F. Vokes, vice president and general manager of the Shurtleff Pandia Divisions, Black Clawson Company.

After the recent announcement of significant improvements in its process, Riverside Paper filed new patent applications in the U.S., Canada, England, Germany, France, Italy and Japan.

Officials of Riverside and Black Clawson said these patents are included in the pact signed this morning.

Studies are being initiated this week to map out the areas and their proposed uses in the 1000 Island Park site on the Fox River near Kaukauna.

Charles Hervey, chief park planner of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, said the 242-acre park probably will include wildlife area and recreation areas.

The Outagamie County Board's park and recreation committee has made the site its next priority project, and the City of Kaukauna also is interested in developing the location.

Hervey said if plans move along, there is a "good chance" for federal Land and Water Conservation Act assistance before the end of this fiscal year.

The land is owned by the City of Kaukauna and the Mississippi Canal Co. The park will become the county's second park offering several types of outside recreation. The other park is Plamann, north of Appleton.

Youth Involved in Theft Gets Probation

A 15-year-old Kimberly boy who was involved in the theft of about $117 from the Kimberly High School office March 5, Monday afternoon was placed on one year's supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services.

Judge Raymond P. Dohr, of the Juvenile Court, ordered the youth to make restitution within 30 days. Kimberly police conducted the investigation.

Store Is Vandalized

Vandals welding pellet guns shot three holes in a $300 sign at the Dairy Queen Store 2000 S. Oneida Street late Sunday or early Monday. The vandalism was reported to police Monday.

March Went Out Like a lion and a couple of them seem to have remained in Appleton to take a slight siesta in the middle of College Avenue. But there is a bit of trick photography involved here and the above picture is a salute to April Fool's Day by Post-Crescent photographers.

The damages for the surviving women and five men include personal injury, medical and hospital expenses, nursing and child care, future the estates of five persons injured impairment, and loss of involved in a 1967 three-car crash near Hilbert.

The jury found that Anthony Leonard Smith, only surviving driver, was the defendant in the case, along with the American Family Mutual Insurance Company, State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company and the Allstate Insurance Company.

The action was brought about by the survivors of the crash, which took five lives and critically injured three others. Calumet County Circuit Judge William Crane presided over the trial. He took 54 minutes to instruct the jury on the 16-point questionnaire.

Prange Request Again Denied

Street Committee Voted Against Midway Closing

A second municipal body has denied the request of the H C Prange Co. to have a portion of Midway Street vacated for expansion of the first floor of the College Avenue store.

The action was taken late Monday afternoon by the members of the street-sanitation committee, which concurred in the recommendation of the city plan commission earlier in the day.

The committee held on a 4-1 vote—Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) dissenting—that if a portion of Midway Street the width of the Prange store, was vacated a serious downtown traffic problem would be created by virtue of truck deliveries to the firm on Oneida Street.

No Comparison Public Works Director Frank Keuler told the committee there was no comparison between the street vacation request of Prange's and vacating of an alley a block to the east to make way for the Gimbel's Department Store project.

Actually, there is considerable difference between the two," Keuler added. "I accept all this," Thompson remarked, "But if you close something for one, you have to do it for the other."

Ald. Ralph Bertsch (19th) reminded Thompson that the city during February on Midway Street, which passes between the store and Prange parking ramp from Appleton to Oneida streets, showed it carried more than 300 vehicles a day.

Some city officials reported late Monday afternoon they had received critical telephone calls from Prange Company representatives who registered strong objections and disappointment over the action to deny the street vacation request.

Other Action In other action, the committee recommended that stretches of several streets be added to the city's truck route system. They are:

Northland Avenue from Madison Street to Richmond Street. Northland from the east city limits to a quarter mile west of Ballard Road.

Glendale Avenue from Ballard Road to the east city limits. Second Street from Lynndale Drive to Vilas Drive.

Calumet Street from Oneida Street to the east city limits. College Avenue from Walter Avenue to Speel Road.

Kensington Drive from Newberry Street to the south city limits. Oneida Street from Hoover Street to the south city limits.

Richmond Street from south of Weiland Avenue to the north city limits. Ballard Road from Northland Avenue to the north city limits.

The truck route was last revised in 1965.

420 New Mercury Vapor Lamps Third Stage in Street Lighting OK'd

NEENAH — The third step in a four-phase program to completely relight the city with mercury vapor lamps by the end of 1970, was approved Monday by the street and sanitation committee.

Installation of the 420 lamps is scheduled for completion by Sept. 1. When finished, all the area east of Commercial Street, the Soo Line Railroad tracks, and north of Cecil Street will have the new type lighting.

When the third step is completed, the built-in cost for mercury vapor lighting will be about $94,500. The final phase is set up for 1970 and when completed the annual cost of city lighting will total in the neighborhood of $114,000.

Objection Starkie Swenson, 234 Lakeshore Ave., asked the committee to drop its plans for mercury vapor lamps on his street and the committee agreed.

"The property owners are 100 per cent against the new lighting," he explained. "This is the one area where people can get an unobstructed view of Lake Winnebago and the new, bright lighting would mar its natural beauty."

A total of 10 new lamps had been earmarked for installation for the street. Swenson, representing the property owners, asked the committee to keep the ornamental incandescent lighting.

In all, the 169 lights will cost $18,565 annually, but with the installation slated for September completion, the impact for this year will be about $5,900. The committee decided to advertise for bids for 1969 sidewalk repair in the Second and Ninth Wards.

Public Works Director Wayne Bryan said when the two wards are finished the city will have repaired sidewalks in all 10 city wards. "I think we should seriously consider getting out of the sidewalk business," Bryan told the committee.

"After we get the sidewalk repaired," Bryan explained, "the only participation by the city will be in a limited inspection capacity."

In other action the committee voted to recommend the purchase of a $3,835 sewer rodder and trade in its 1956 model.

The employees held a 15 minute memorial service to honor the late President. Sitting to the right of Parnell is County Judge Raymond P. Dohr. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Citizens' Meeting Monday 3 School Proposals in Winneconne

WINNECONNE — The board of education will take three revised proposals for a new high school to a citizens committee at 8 p.m. Monday in the Central School.

Following the meeting or at a later date, the board of education will choose one of the designs and set a date for its second referendum on the high school.

The designs, submitted by Thern Associates Inc., Oshkosh, carry estimated costs of $2 million, $1.7 million and $1.6 million. They range in size from 129,000 square feet, to 103,000 and to 90,000 square feet.

Thern recently said his estimated $13.25 per foot construction costs includes immovable equipment, but he said there would not be much of this equipment in the school. The large majority of equipment will be movable, he said.

and relocate the Oshkosh plant were abandoned when adjacent property owners objected to the Oshkosh location.

The Oshkosh property owners protested a zoning change approved by the city council to allow construction of the new plant. The construction was held up by court action and forcing the company to seek expansion property in Neenah.

ITU rents and laundries such items as towels, uniforms, floor coverings and deals in dust control services.

The Neenah plant will be a complete laundry and is earmarked to be the largest of three the company now has in Wisconsin. "When we start operating it will not be our biggest," Ross said, "but our plans are to increase its peralting capacity."

Workmen Trip Alarm, Menasha High Vacated MENASHA — Workmen melting lead for remodeling work being done at the senior high school accidentally triggered a heat-detector that turned in a false fire alarm at 9:23 a.m. today, firemen said. Students filed from the building as fire-plant will be closed down. The men sought out the cause of the firm's original plans to expand alarm, then classes resumed.

No Federal Aid For Sewer Project

MENASHA — Learning that federal aid for Meadowview Acres storm sewers is out of the question for another year, Sixth Ward Ald. Ronald Scheurle asked Monday whether similar problems might face the city in a proposed apartment complex in the Schwarzbauer Annexation area.

Saying he favors the multiple-unit apartment project proposed by an Appleton firm, Alcan, Ltd., Scheurle spoke out during a public hearing on the firm's rezoning request.

"I have one question to ask, and that's storm sewers — how are we going to get them in, and when?" He pointed out that the Meadowview area has waited for storm sewers since being promised them several years ago when the city annexed the tract. He asked whether the Alcan project would face similar delays.

Mayor John Klein told him his question wasn't really pertinent to the rezoning question before the hearing, but Second Ward Ald. Walter Rummel interjected that the reason for the delays in the Meadowview area was "the potential of federal funds."

Seismograph Records Large Quake in Turkey

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The University of California seismograph recorded a large earthquake Sunday night centered in southwest Turkey near the coast of the Sea of Crete.

Seismologists said the quake was recorded at 11:30 PST and registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, strong enough to cause damage in a populated area.

The National Earthquake Information Center in Rockville, Md., said the earthquake was centered about 275 miles southwest of the capital city, Ankara. That would be about 200 miles from Turkey's Alasehir area where a quake killed at least 50 persons last week.

Angry Menasha Park Board Demands Explanation of Veto

MENASHA — Angry at recently having been reversed by the common council, the park board demanded Monday night to be told precisely where it overstepped its legal powers in giving the recreation director a raise and giving him authority over the park superintendent.

Following a lengthy "president's report" by Ted R. Neely, board president, the board voted unanimously requesting the city council to provide "specific legal references to those ordinances violated by the board's actions."

The action passed after members convinced H. E. (Bud) Geibel, board vice president, to withdraw a motion for the board to "recommend to the city council, because of their vote of no confidence, that they seriously review the necessity of continuing the park and recreation board."

Neely suggested that the board "defer that" approach, then suggested the wording of the alternate motion. Geibel withdrew his suggestion and submitted Neely's instead, commenting, "Let's see what answer we get from them on this, and then we'll take it further."

In his report, Neely recalled that the board had elevated Recreation Director Robert Vanevenhoven to the position of director of parks, recreation and cemeteries, and had raised his salary from the $8,600 authorized by the council to $9,200, while establishing the salary of Park Supt. Thomas Van Buskirk at $7,200 rather than the $8,600 level that had been reached by the late Harry Kargus before his death.

The council upheld only the new salary for the park superintendent.

Bear Creek Loses Fight for School

Dissolution of District Upheld

MADISON — The State Supreme Court has upheld the decision of a Shawano County court turning down the Bear Creek School District's fight to stop the proposed dissolution of the district.

In an unanimous decision, written by Justice Nathan Heffernan, the high court held that legal grounds do not exist for over-turning the long-fought decision.

"We are satisfied that the (district's) attorney has ably presented the position of his clients in expressing their dissatisfaction," wrote Heffernan for the court.

"However, under the guidelines of school reorganization as established by the Legislature, the mere dissatisfaction, although perhaps well-founded, of a portion of the community does not constitute legal grounds for upsetting an order," the decision stated.

The court case arose out of an August, 1967 order of the agency school committee directing that the school district was to be dissolved and with the exception of specified lands, attached to the Clintonville School District.

from marijuana, Medow said he had read about the narcotic drug.

Medow's attorney argued that the state failed to show that what Medow possessed was actually the "narcotic product" of the plant cannabis sativa L. commonly referred to as marijuana. The attorney argued that there was a difference — that marijuana was the narcotic product of the plant.

Cane told the jury that the state did not have to prove the material Medow had would have some type of "physiological affect" on him.

Helped Steal Cars

Runaway Returned To Home for Boys

A 15-year-old Appleton boy who last month ran away from the Home Home at Wittenberg and later was involved in the theft of two cars, was returned to the home Monday following an appearance in Outagamie County Juvenile Court.

The boy had been sent to the home for boys in February, after he was found delinquent. The delinquency finding was renewed Monday.

George Hanlon, an Outagamie County sheriff's investigator, testified that the Appleton youth was one of three boys who ran away from the home on March 6.

The boys stole a car from Wittenberg and abandoned it when it went into a ditch near New London. The car sustained about $235 damage, of which the Appleton youth was ordered to pay a third.

Given Ride
A New London resident picked up the youths as they hitchhiked on U.S. 45 after running the stolen auto into the ditch. He told police two of the youths threatened him with a knife and a length of chain. He later told authorities the Appleton boy was not involved in the threat.

The New London resident refused to comply with the

Decisions Made

The decisions were made following legally conducted meetings and in proper statutory manner and cannot be attacked under state law, Heffernan held for the court.

Public notice was properly given of the proceedings during the course of the fight, he noted, turning back an allegation by the district that the newspaper used to publish notices had insufficient circulation in the district.

The court's decision also maintained that "it would appear to be irrelevant" whether or not the coordinator of the agency school committee allegedly promised the Clintonville district extra aids, if the Bear Creek decision was not appealed.

In the same fashion, the justices turned back charges from the Bear Creek district that local residents were misled as to the nature of the proceedings.

The actual orders issued, hearing notices and other information in evidence are clear in their explanation of the matter, the court said.

his attorney, testified that he had picked the vegetable matter after finding it "growing wild" in Northern Illinois.

Medow said he at first was under the impression the material was marijuana, but explained that when he smoked some of it, it had "no adverse affect" on him. He said he then believed the plant substance was not marijuana.

When asked by Thomas Cane, assistant district attorney, how he knew what affect to expect

The committee also recommended that, since the city of Appleton pays over half the county's taxes, the city should have over half the membership of the reapportioned board.

Halt Inflation Campaign
—Appleton teachers, who are now bargaining with the board of education for a 1968-70 contract, released a statement through negotiator Gordon Myse that they are going to begin a campaign to halt inflation.

In keeping with the spirit of the new campaign, the teachers agreed their new contract should include no pay increase and that there should be no overtime pay for involvement in extra-curricular activities.

Women Moved From Jail Too Many Inmates

Three women inmates in the Outagamie County Jail were scheduled to be transferred to the Winnebago County Jail today to make room for an overload of juvenile inmates.

Sheriff Clavin L. Spice said Monday there were nine boys in the male juvenile detention cell, which is set up to accommodate four or five persons. Six of the youths were placed in detention Sunday, in connection with burglaries, thefts, and vandalism in Little Chute, Kimberly, and Appleton.

Spice said several of the youths had to sleep on spare mattresses on the cell floor.

Two More Rooms

Two of the women prisoners Monday were in the female lockup section and the third, who is serving a three-year term under Huber Law (work release) was in a separate section of the jail.

Spice said all three women will be transferred, to the Winnebago County Jail at Oshkosh to make two more rooms available for juvenile boys. He said it is possible the woman serving under Huber Law might remain in the Winnebago County Jail since she is working in Oshkosh.

The other two women will be returned to jail here when there is ample room, Spice explained.

He said Winnebago County will charge Outagamie County board for the women prisoners. The arrangement, Spice said, was worked out with the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department.

Prisoners have had to be transferred to other area jails in the past, Spice said, but not within the past few years.

Studded Tires Must Be Removed April 15

Studded snow tires must be removed from motor vehicles throughout Wisconsin by April 15.

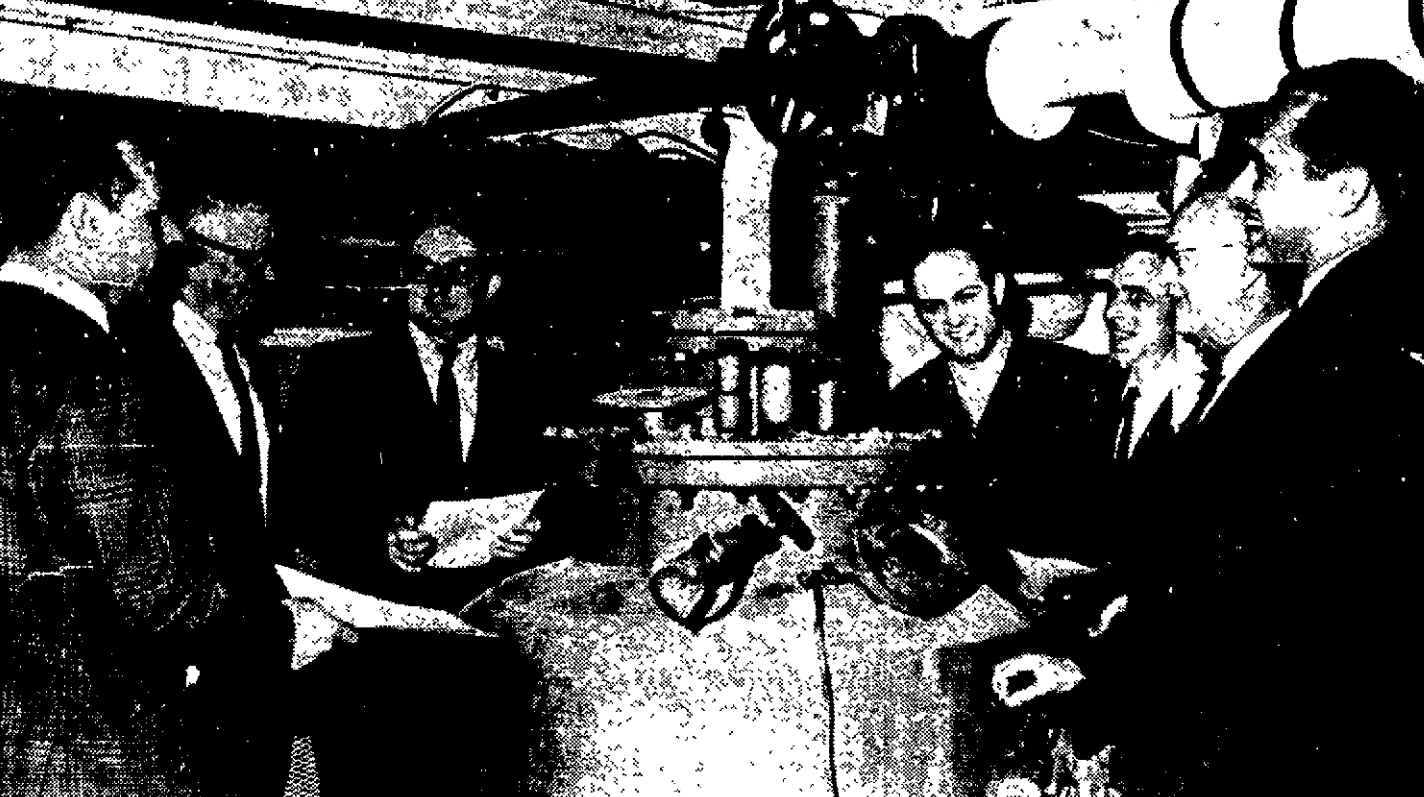

Once removed, precautions should be taken in storing tires, according to Ted LaValley, American Automobile Association (AAA) service manager.

Studded tires should be clearly marked so that they may be placed back on the same wheel next fall. This must be done, since studs wear at a slight angle and their effectiveness will be lost if the tire is placed on a different wheel.

The holes in which the studs are seated could also become enlarged and the studs might drop out if the tire is placed on a different wheel.

Studs can not be replaced once they have dropped from a tire or have become worn.

In storing snow or studded snow tires, the AAA recommends motorists place them in a cool place, such as a basement or a shaded area in a garage. Tires should never be exposed to sunlight and should be placed flat on their side and not stored in a rolling or upright position.

Officials Now Believe Winning Of War Will be No Easy Task

Control by End of Year Unrealistic

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer
TAY NINH, Vietnam (AP) — Optimism about the war reflected at U.S. headquarters in Saigon earlier this year has been replaced by constraint. American pacification officials no longer mention the confident forecasts, made in February that 90 per cent of South Vietnam's population would be under government control and protection by year's end.

As has happened often in the past, hopes have proved premature that the enemy forces were so weakened and disarrayed.

A News Analysis

that they had lost the drive for any real fight. Many realities of the war seem as valid now as they did in earlier years.

One is that there is no easy way to win.

The B52 bombers that send high explosives crashing into the jungles have scored many successes, allied officers say, but they have not deterred a determined enemy from frequently bursting upon allied bases.

Sophisticated radar and electronic tracking devices on aircraft and vehicles were seen as another technique of reducing the troops' workload. But none of this apparatus located two battalion-sized enemy ambushes laid in daylight last week along busy highways in this area 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The Vietnamese army appears nowhere near taking over the workload from the Americans. In three sectors surveyed last week, American troops were earmarked to takeover areas currently defended by the Vietnamese army, should the pressure increase to a dangerous level.

Hopes that people in outlying villages recently armed by the Saigon government would resist the Viet Cong have not fully materialized. Enemy forces have walked through allegedly pacified villages west and south of Saigon without a shot being fired by the defenders.

Outer-ring defenses around many cities have not functioned. A grade "A" hamlet outside Bac Lieu city in the Mekong Delta was found to be harboring Viet Cong forces at night. They regularly received intelligence from villagers visiting the nearby city market.

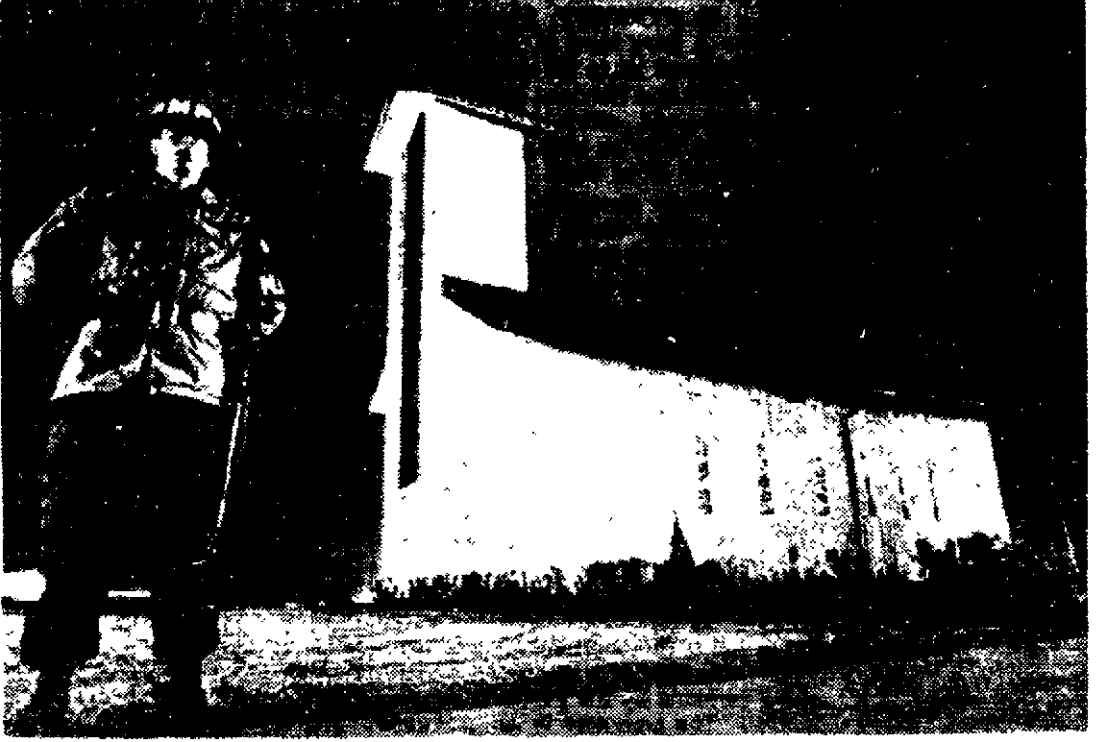

Grasp Initiative
Another reality is that allied troops often cannot grasp the initiative from the enemy. Usually the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are found only when they want to be found. As an example, 12 U.S. battalions recently thrashed around the Michelin rubber plantation unsuccessfully seeking a North Vietnamese regiment.

A prisoner captured south of Saigon this week said he and his 30-man platoon slept each night for months in nipa palms only 100 yards from a firebase manned by the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade.

Deficiency in knowledge of the local scene is compensated by the vast firepower U.S. forces can summon at any given moment from artillery and airpower. In the final analysis, this immense firepower generally saves the day. But firepower can be used successfully only under government control and protection by year's end.

As has happened often in the past, hopes have proved premature that the enemy forces were so weakened and disarrayed.

Muskie Stumping Seriously For 1972 Presidential Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's wide-ranging political travels have paid off with a blizzard of speaking invitations and aides say "he has to be taken seriously" as possible 1972 presidential candidate.

By the end of April, an aide said, the Maine Democrat who was his party's 1968 vice presidential nominee, will have made 60 speeches in 27 states this year, an average of one every two days.

He has also made speeches in Japan, Britain and Canada and is solidly booked into June.

Muskie began his travels frankly admitting he is considering trying for the presidency three years from now.

"At least," one Muskie aide said, "Democratic leaders in 27 states know there is an alternative for 1972 if he decides to run."

Outside Washington
By expanding his efforts outside Washington, the senator is following the route that led John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon to presidential nominations in 1960 and 1968.

The flood of speaking invitations, aides said, "has been noticeably increasing" in recent weeks to some 25-50 a day.

While Muskie had been on the stump, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, regarded as the Democrats' No. 1 potential 1972 candidate, has been busy learning the ropes as his party's Senate whip.

Kennedy is about to return to the banquet circuit after three months confinement to the Senate, but aides deny any intention to compete with Muskie.

"If he were trying to compete with Muskie on that score, he would do a lot more," said a Kennedy aide over the weekend.

Potential Candidate
Another potential candidate for the 1972 Democratic nomination, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, also has kept his name before the public in recent months.

Humphrey, defeated last fall for the presidency, has spoken in several cities in opposition to the Nixon administration's missile defense system. And his schedule next month includes some purely political appearances.

He has said he intends to stay active in national party affairs in order to restore unity among the Democrats. However, Humphrey is known to be considering running for the Senate from Minnesota in 1970 with an eye to the 1972 presidential race.

Psychiatric Studies
Expensive Sirhan Case Starts 13th Week Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan would have been unable to fore- cast prior to the time of the Kennedy starts its 13th week today, with a psychiatrist summoned by the state as the first witness.

Dr. Seymour Pollack, professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, had just begun his testimony Friday as a state rebuttal witness when Judge Herbert V. Walker adjourned court until today out of respect to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Other witnesses had said tests indicated Sirhan, a 25-year-old Jordanian Arab, suffered from paranoia and schizophrenia, but Pollack said this was not his finding.

"Had I as a psychiatrist met Sirhan before the shooting I wouldn't have been able to determine any serious psychopathology."

The man who first said "A penny for your thoughts," obviously had never paid for psychoanalysis. (Copyright, 1969)

Senate Awaits Nixon's Budget Revisions Plan

$195.3 Billion
Estimated by LBJ
Expected to be Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders of both parties say Congress has been marking time awaiting President Nixon's budget revisions. The view from the House, where a handful of bills has passed, is that "the session has started off pretty well."

"We're still waiting for the President's budget message," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield. "We really can't get going until we know the direction in which the new administration is pointing. We haven't done much thus far because we haven't had anything to do."

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois agreed in a separate interview with Mansfield's assessment.

"It has been a tremendous job, trying to revise the spending estimates submitted by former President Johnson," Dirksen said. "The budget director has to get all of these estimates in from departments and agencies check them and recheck them."

Final Estimates
"All of our time at the last leadership meeting at the White House was devoted to the budget and where to cut it. I think that the final estimates ought to be ready immediately after Easter, however."

Administration officials have pledged publicly they will cut spending below the $195.3 billion estimated by Johnson for the fiscal year beginning July 1. But they have complained that Johnson under estimated spending and over estimated revenues.

"I think this session has started off pretty well," said House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., adding that criticism of the lawmakers for not having completed more legislative actions is unjustified.

The House's own published scorecard, entitled "Status of Major Bills," lists only three—an increase in the public debt ceiling, passed by both branches, and two appropriation measures.

One is a minor supplemental money bill, the other provides an additional $1 billion for farm price supports. The first has been passed by both branches, the second by the House.

Other Pay Raises
Congress gave itself a pay raise by not vetoing a presidential commission's recommendations for hiking the basic salary from $30,000 to $42,500.

Congress also raised the pay of the vice president, who presides over the Senate, the Speaker and other officials.

McCormack noted at a news conference that Congress has passed a bill continuing the authority of the President to reorganize executive agencies, subject to Congressional review.

McCormack said that when a new Congress takes office, some time necessarily is taken up by the setting up of committees, deciding on the party ratio of each and making appointments.

Some committees already have done substantial work. In the House, for example, the Ways and Means Committee has conducted several weeks of hearings on general tax reform and the Education and Labor Committee has agreed on extension of education programs.

Dirksen gave the Senate credit for this kind of work, telling a reporter "we are moving very well in committees to bring legislation to Congress."

Dirksen added, "Maybe it will be better if we don't pass a lot of legislation."

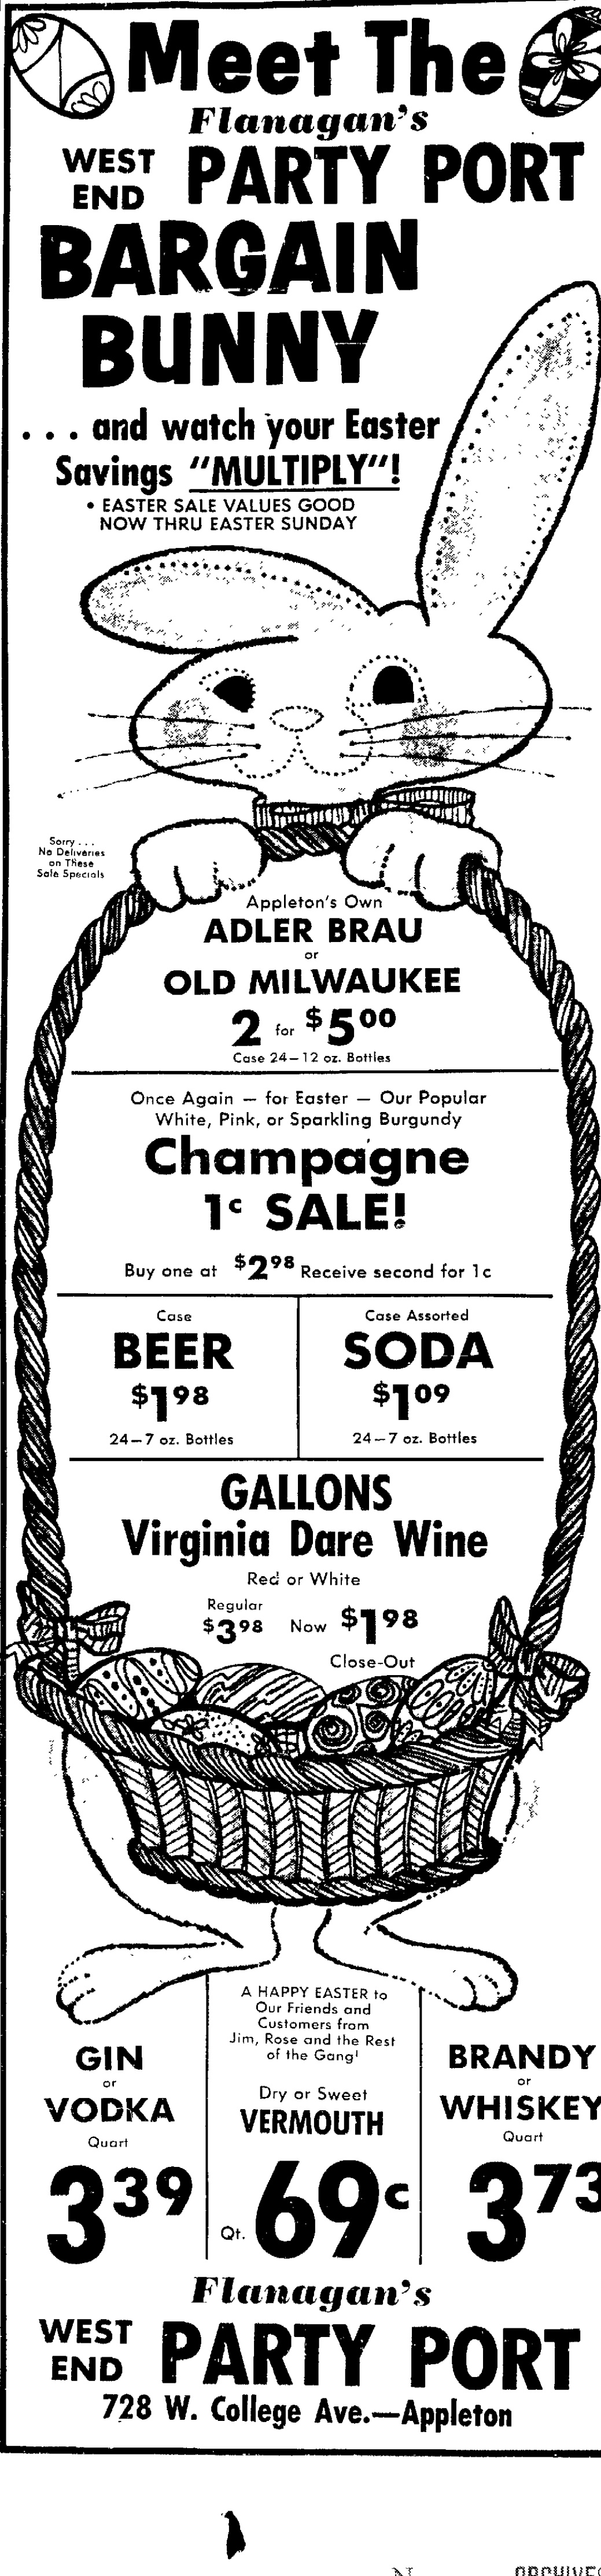

Sen. Inoye Calls for Red China Recognition

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inoye, D-Hawaii, keynote at the last Democratic convention, says the United States should set up diplomatic relations with Red China and agree to its admission to the United Nations.

Mainland China's population constitutes 25 per cent of humanity, Inoye said in a speech to a state AFL-CIO convention, "and cannot be disregarded any longer."

"If we are to have peace, we must think the unthinkable—a Red Chinese ambassador in Washington and a Red Chinese representative at the United Nations," he said.

Rockets Hope To Run Past Hawks Tonight

Atlanta Carries 2-0 Playoff Advantage Into Tilt at San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Out-scrambled twice, the young San Diego Rockets again try to run against the Atlanta Hawks tonight in a National Basketball Association playoff.

But first, Rocket Coach Jack McMahon said Monday, his players must get the ball more often to his fast-breaking rookie guards and freshman center Elvin Hayes.

The Hawks won the first two games in Atlanta, 107-98 and 116-114.

If Zelmo Beaty and Bill Bridges continue to dominate the backboards the Rockets may find themselves trailing 0-3 in the best-of-7 Western Division semifinals.

"Atlanta's the most physical team in the NBA," said Stu Lantz, San Diego's rookie guard. "If they run with us, they can't beat us."

Not Getting Ball

Coach McMahon's game plan always has been to run, but as he said with frustration: "Why aren't we running? We're not getting the ball." The Rockets, in their second year of NBA action, have won all four meetings with the Hawks in San Diego's International Sports Arena, while dropping all six games in Atlanta.

"The home court should be an advantage," McMahon said. "It hasn't been proved in the playoffs, though, except in our series." Besides getting more rebounds, McMahon's concern also is the hot shooting of Hawks' Lou Hudson, who scored 39 points in the opener last Thursday.

Feed Bridges

The Hawks also like to give the ball to Beaty outside and force Hayes to guard him away from the bucket. Then they feed the ball to the bull-like Bridges underneath.

Hayes outplayed his center opponent, Beaty, in the first two games, scoring 31 points, but dropped to 13 last Saturday night when he was hampered by stomach cramps.

A healthy, sharpshooting Hayes and continued sharp efforts by young Rick Adelman and Lantz, plus a solid performance by veteran Don Kojis and "we can beat Atlanta," said McMahon.

Coach Richie Guerin of the Hawks plans to keep his men hitting the boards.

"More rebounds, more shots and more points," said Guerin.

Penguins Fire Red Sullivan As Coach

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins, trying to create a winner in the National Hockey League, are searching for a new coach.

Red Sullivan was fired as coach Monday but it wasn't a surprise-even to him.

"It didn't come as a shock," the 39-year-old Sullivan said. "Everywhere I went for the last month, it was rumored in the newspapers."

Miss Playoff Spot

Last year, in their first season in the NHL, the Penguins finished only six points out of first place, but still missed a playoff spot.

This season they barely made fifth place and wound up with a 20-45-11 record. They're the only expansion team that never made the playoffs.

Attendance dipped this season more than 50,000 and a club spokesman said the Penguins lost $400,000 this year. Last year they lost $250,000.

The Penguins offered the fiery Sullivan a job as head scout, but he said he wants a few days to think about it.

Lew Begins Negotiations With Bucks

By BOB KERR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lew Alcindor is putting all his chips on the National Basketball Association.

For the first five years of his professional career it could cost him just under $2 million.

The 21-year-old, three-time All-American center turned down a $3.25-million five-year contract offer from the American Basketball Association to negotiate with the NBA which has offered him just more than $1 million for a similar period.

"Lew decided to fulfill his moral obligation given in New York to the Milwaukee club," was the only comment Monday of his adviser, Sam Gilbert.

Gilbert, a Los Angeles contractor, said Alcindor would begin private negotiations with the NBA and Milwaukee Bucks by Wednesday.

Receives Telegram

Gilbert said the decision to rule out the ABA offer was made Monday after Alcindor received a telegram from ABA Commissioner George Mikan. The telegram, Gilbert, said, outlined an offer made by the ABA last week.

Mikan detailed the ABA plum last Saturday as he waved a $1-million cashier's check in the air at a news conference.

He said the offer including the $1 million, a $500,000 bonus, 5 per cent of the stock in the New York Nets, an annuity payment of $65,200 for 20 years beginning at the age 41, and 10 per cent of the ABA national television contracts totaling at least $500,000.

Although details of the NBA offer have never been made public, it is reported to be about $1.4 million.

Officials of the Bucks were reported to be on the way to Los Angeles. A spokesman said the club hopes to sign Alcindor by Wednesday.

The negotiations with the 7-foot-11/2 UCLA senior hit a high in bidding for a pro rookie. Texan Donnie Anderson was given a $600,000 to $700,000 contract with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League in the op pact to date.

George Thompson, Right, holds his Marquette University jersey No. 24 which was retired Monday night in ceremonies honoring him as the highest career scorer in the school's basketball history with 1,773 points. Marquette has retired the jersey of only one other player. At the left is Bill Fitch, Minnesota coach and banquet speaker. In the center is Warrior coach Al McGuire. (AP Wirephoto)

Melton Keys White Sox Victory

Red Sox Given Tongue Lashing From Williams; Belinsky Headed for Minors

By SHEILA MORAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

With the opening of the major league baseball season a week away, the Boston Red Sox are starting from scratch. So is Bo Belinsky.

Manager Dick Williams, complaining his Red Sox were "goin' up and not playing baseball," vanked his players from the field Monday during an intrasquad game and let them know who's boss.

"We'll start from scratch," he said after a 10-minute lecture in the clubhouse.

Belinsky, the playboy pitcher who has bounced around four major league clubs, found out from General Manager Bing Devine of the St. Louis Cardinals that he'll start from scratch, too.

Ask for Waivers

The Cards asked waivers on the 32-year-old left-hander and said they'll decide today or Wednesday whether to assign Belinsky to the Cards' Tulsa farm club.

"The Astros told me they don't want him back," Devine said.

Later, the Chicago White Sox, helped by two key hits from rookie Bill Melton, defeated the Cards 5-3 in an exhibition game. Melton raised his spring average to .406 with a first-inning double that drove in one run and a single in the fifth that started another rally.

The Red Sox confined their action to the practice field at Winter Haven, Fla. Their scheduled game with Washington was one of five cancellations because of the national day of mourning for the late President Eisenhower. Also canceled were Kansas City-New York Yankees, Pittsburgh - Baltimore, Philadelphia-Minnesota and Atlanta-Detroit.

The other games started late because of the Eisenhower funeral. The New York Mets blanked Cincinnati 3-0 and San Diego defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-3.

Tied at 5-5

The San Francisco-Cleveland game was called because of darkness after eight innings and a 5-5 tie. The Oakland-California game was also called because of darkness, with Oakland in front 7-1 after six innings.

Jim McAndrew scattered seven hits over the first seven innings and picked up his fourth exhibition victory as the Mets trimmed the Reds. McAndrew, tagged two homers, his sixth 41 this spring, lowered his earned run average to 0.93 before giving way to Ron Taylor, who completed the shutout with three scoreless innings of relief.

Four San Diego homers helped the Padres break a five-game losing streak. Ollie Brown, tagged two homers, his sixth and seventh of the spring; Clarence Gaston hit a two-run homer; and Nate Colbert stroked one with none aboard.

Rich Scheinblum's first home run of the exhibition season boosted Cleveland into a tie with San Francisco. Willie McCovey's two-run homer, his third of the spring, had given the Giants a 5-4 lead.

Oakland pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom held the Angels to three hits.

6 Returning Regulars Brighten Outlook for Kimberly Baseball Unit

KIMBERLY — Experience, sophomore Mike Erbrecht, out-sound defense and the return of the team's top pitcher lend a bright outlook to the fortunes of the 1969 Kimberly High School baseball squad.

The Papermakers open their 11-game regular season April 10 with a non-conference game at Hortonville. Kimberly's Mid-Eastern Conference slate begins at home against New London April 29.

Seven lettermen, including six regulars, return to 19-year pilot Jim Nirschl and second-year Jayvee coach Bill Repulski. Six more boys who logged considerable playing time last year in Jayvee and American Legion baseball should help fill the gap remaining.

Play .500 Ball

The 1968 Papermakers chalked up a 3-4 record in the M-E last year and played .500 ball overall, winning seven and losing seven. But six of the seven setbacks were by one run (a 3-2 tournament loss to Kaukauna among them), and hopes are up that this year's squad will have the extra punch required to win more often.

Chief losses from the '68 Papermaker unit were pitcher-outfielder Jess Haas the team's most valuable player and 3-time letter winner; infielder Matt Nirschl, a good hitter; and outfielder-pitcher Gordon Smith, captain and 3-time letter winner.

Heading the list of returnees is No. 1 hurler Ralph Kalies, a junior who has already won two letters in the sport. Junior shortstop Dan Blajeski, senior second-baseman Jeff Erbrecht, and senior third-baseman-catcher Bill Kaufman are other double letter-winners back out.

Rounding out the lettermen are senior catcher-first baseman John Johnson, junior first baseman-outfielder Jay Wynngaard, and junior outfielder-first baseman Jim Andres. All of the above, with the exception of Andres, were regulars a year ago.

The best prospects listed by Nirschl are seniors Wayne Liethen, infielder, and John Nabbefeld, pitcher; juniors Rick Rusch, pitcher; Steve Schultz, infielder, and Gary Wynngaard, infielder and outfielder; and

New Bowling Lanes Named Super Bowl

The Marcus bowling establishment to be constructed at the corner of Ballard Road and Northland Ave. will be called the Super Bowl.

This was the winning name in a contest which drew 600 entries. Four persons submitted the "Super Bowl" name. They are: Mrs. Clement Rankin, Appleton; Mrs. Howard Lemke, Appleton; Mrs. Nathan Tiedt, Little Chute; and Mrs. Clair Bolwerk, Kimberly.

In a special drawing held at 41 Bowl last weekend, Mrs. Rankin was declared the winner of a weekend trip to the Silver Dome in Marinette, plus a one year's pass to all Marcus theatres in Appleton and Neenah. The other three were each awarded one year's passes to the same theatres.

MU Retires Thompson's Number

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George Thompson, Marquette University basketball star, became the second player in the school's history Monday night to have his uniform number retired.

Thompson, a 6-foot-2 senior from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the highest scorer in Marquette history with 1,773 points, topping the former record held by Don Kojis, now a star with the San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

Other honors presented Thompson at the school's annual basketball banquet included a plaque and the game ball, which was used when he broke Kojis' record; the free throw proficiency award from the Marquette Tip Off Club, and citation by teammates as the team's most valuable player.

Sox' AA and AAA club rosters. A number of the players now working in Foxes uniforms will be assigned to the Sarasota rookie club.

The Foxes won their first exhibition game—against the Chisox' Lynchburg club—then lost its next six starts.

George Hunter, former Foxes first baseman, has been working with Saffell as a coach but he hasn't been officially assigned to the club for the '69 season. The club's defense has been far ahead of its hitting to date, according to Saffell.

Duke's Bubas Switches Jobs

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Vic Bubas made the switch from head basketball coach to special assistant to the chancellor of Duke University today.

Bubas will be working directly under Dr. Barnes Woodhall, recently named chancellor problem. He will assume much of the responsibility for the internal affairs of the university.

Although the opening of the season has not yet been determined, the loop's all-star game has been set for July 6 at Bear Creek.

Lakers Record 115-98 Win Over Warriors

Wilt Dominates Boards; West Tops Scoring With 25

By RON RAPOPORT

OAKLAND (AP)—"We did all the things we had to do," explained Wilt Chamberlain.

Dominating the boards to the fullest extent of his 7-foot-1 ability and scoring more than he had in the first two playoff games together, Chamberlain led the Los Angeles Lakers out of the valley of disaster and back into the middle of the National Basketball Association playoffs Monday night.

Stunned by two straight Western Division post-season defeats to the San Francisco Warriors on their own court, the Lakers broke a close game wide open in the second half and breezed to a 115-98 triumph.

That made the Warriors lead in the series two games to one, with the next game set for the San Francisco Cow Palace Wednesday night and the fifth in Los Angeles on Friday.

Mullins' Injured

Playing quite unlike the team that had brought the Lakers to the brink of elimination, the Warriors may have suffered a fate even worse than the loss of the game. The status of their hot-shooting guard Jeff Mullins is now in doubt for the rest of the series.

Mullins collided with Laker forward Bill Hewitt just 37 seconds into the game and was out for the first quarter. When he finally returned, it was with a big bandage around his left knee and he played only half the game, scoring seven points.

"It's touch and go if I can play Wednesday," diagnosed Mullins, who suffered a severe charlie horse with some internal bleeding. He will undergo treatment with team physician Dr. James Raggio in a San Francisco hospital today.

Nate Thurmond led the Warriors with 22 points, but lost the rebounding battle to Chamberlain 28-20. Wilt scored in the first game of the series and only 10 in the second, but threw in 22 this time around, only three less than team leader Jerry West.

Narrowed Gap

Trailing 45-43 at the half the Lakers broke up the game in the third period with 41 points, 13 by West and 10 by guard Johnny Egan. Then when the Warriors narrowed the gap to nine points in the final period, the Lakers reeled off 10 straight points, six by Hewitt, to settle things.

"The ball seemed to go in this time," said Laker Coach Bill van Breda Kolff. "It didn't in the first two games. We were up for this game. We had to be."

Warrior coach George Lee said his club had suffered a natural let-down after the first two upset victories.

"The fourth game is the big one," he said "Big for us and big for them."

Project in Green County One-Room School, Woodlot Will be Developed for Forestry Education

By OLLIE FINK
Monroe Evening Times
MONROE (AP) — Voices of school children will soon be heard again in the one room West Clarno School, near Monroe, which was closed last year upon construction of a new elementary school facility in Monroe.

A group of civic leaders in the county have formed a corporation, the Green County Forestry Education Center, Inc., to develop the school and an adjacent 21-acre woodlot as an educational center for forestry and conservation education programs for boys and girls.

Albert Deppeler, president of the corporation, said that more than 50 pledges of $25 each have been received for membership in the unit, which will take over the red brick building for the program.

A total of $6,100 is needed to finance the building and site, he said.

Highest Bidder
A parttime woodworker and fulltime cheesemaker, Deppeler purchased the school from the Monroe School Board when it was sold to the highest bidder. The children who went to school there are now attending Northside Elementary School in Monroe.

Deppeler said he purchased the building in order to give the corporation more time to raise funds and organize.

Directors of the corporation are now organized, and officers are Deppeler, Harry Williams, rural Monroe, vice president, Phillip Brown, Brooklyn, secretary, and Arleigh Frautschy, Monroe, treasurer.

One of the first programs planned at the site will be school "Culmination Days" in Green County this spring, when over 1,200 boys and girls from elementary schools of Brohead, Juda, Monroe, Albany and New Glarus will participate in a four-day series on wildlife and forestry.

The corporation's officers are to have a planning meeting at 8 p.m. April 11, at the school, along with Rodney Kittelsen, Monroe attorney and school board president, who helped the corporation organize.

Directors of the organization anticipate using the school as an educational center for forestry and conservation programs involving Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H members, and other youth groups. Many area churches may also use the facility.

Deppeler, who is a leader of the project, said he will provide permanent use of the 21-acre adjacent woodlot without charge for use as a model forest.

An adult 4-H leader for 17 years he has long provided instruction in woodworking to youths in county clubs. He said he wants to encourage interest in tree planting and to educate youngsters as to the value and uses of trees.

Ted's Return To Baseball Called Shock

Imagine the Queen of England in a bikini on "Laugh-In," Howard Hughes working as nightclub greeter. Picture the Dalai Lama joining Kiwanis.

When you get through, you have some idea of the shock of baseball at the return of Ted Williams.

Baseball had two certified recluses in its recent history, Joe DiMaggio and Theodore Samuel Williams. They made Silas Marner look gregarious by comparison. Howard Hughes, next to them, would just be the next-door neighbor.

You had to BELIEVE in these guys — like Santa Claus or the Easter bunny. A whole generation grew up thinking they were figments of the old folks' imagination. Some thought they had just gone straight up to heaven after their last big league shower, to that big batting cage in the sky. If you wanted them, leave a message with St. Peter. But don't wait up for the answer.

To see Ted Williams, you had to be a fish. To see DiMagg, you had to be a caddy.

It is considered axiomatic that great athletes cannot teach or organize the games at which they excel. On this yardstick, Williams should be hired right after Judge Crater. This was a man who was larger than life not only in the alcoholic remembrances of the gang around Toots Shor's bar after midnight, but in every locker room in the country.

Percentage of Chances
This was the man who could tell (to hear players talk about it) a pitch three inches outside the strike zone, who drew a wheel around his own strike zone and told you his percentage of chances of hitting a pitch in each quadrant. The umpires let him umpire. The oldest story in the game was of the kid who squawked on a called ball to Ted. The next pitch, there was no question it was a strike. Because Ted hit it over the state line. The ump bent to brush the plate. "When you throw a strike, son, Mr. Williams will let you know."

His achievements in the record book look as if they were made up by Burt L. Standish. Whatever could be done with a bat, he did, with the possible exception of bunt. He turned every All-Star game he was in into a solo concert.

But, before he had quit the game, he had spat at the fans, insulted the Congress of the United States, opened fire on the Marine Corps, and made it clear he thought baseball journalists should be kept in pairs and collected once a week.

When Williams ripped off his uniform and put to sea with his fishing rod, baseball put his bat in the Cooperstown Pantheon but fil'd his phone number in the waste basket. That was all right with Ted. When his old team won its first pennant in 20 years, Ted was the only guy in New England who didn't wire for tickets. He went fishing, as usual.

When Robert E. Short bought the Washington Senators for $9.4 million this year, lots of people thought he was crazy. When he tried to hire Ted Williams to run them, they were sure of it.

First Few Times
Williams was one who went along with this line of thinking. He hung up on Short the first few times. Among the people who thought Ted Williams was temperamentally unsuited to manage a baseball team was Ted Williams. This just about made it unanimous. Most writers thought Short wanted a headline, not a headliner. When he offered to meet Williams 10 miles off the Florida Keys, even though he got seasick, even Ted agreed to listen.

Short showed up waving a flag, not a contract. Baseball didn't need Ted Williams, America did, he said. "If the national pastime gets run out of the national capital, we're in deep trouble," was his pitch. History does not record if he was wearing a red, white and blue hat and humming a Sousa march, but Ted, who went through two wars already, agreed to go back in uniform. He's not only going to fight the American League, he's going to fight crime in the streets. Short agreed to get him some help: lights in the parking lots and more police at the gates.

"He'll be the greatest manager in the history of the game," predicted Short as he sat watching his $9 million team at work.

"He will be back in his boat by Mother's Day," the cynics and the press book retorted.

Williams is getting a chance to show the game which snubbed Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio, and any number of other good .350 hitters owes them an apology.

1½-Ton Car Recovered Racer Dug Up After Crash 42 Years Ago

PENDINE, Wales (AP) — A racing car called Babs, buried 42 years ago after a fatal attempt on the world's land speed record, has been exhumed from its grave under a Welsh sand dune.

One and a half ton Babs—once the fastest car in the world—crashed at more than 170 miles per hour on Pendine Sands, Carmarthenshire in 1927.

World champion driver Jeffrey Parry Thomas was trying to set a land-speed record when the car's chain drive broke. In the crash the chain decapitated Thomas.

Villagers from the nearby village of Pendine buried the car under a sand dune and it became something of a shrine.

This year people were angry when Owen Wyn Owen, a Welsh lecturer, wanted to recover the wreckage and restore it. After petitions and public meetings, however, they agreed to his request. On Sunday a mechanical digger cracked the nine inches of concrete under which Babs was buried and Owen carefully finished the work with a hand trowel.

The blue and white car, 20-feet-long and with a 400 horsepower aero-engine, was found lying on its side eight-feet down. Only one wheel remained, parts of the aluminium body had rotted away.

But Owen hopes to restore Babs to working order and put it on display in Pendine. "I am convinced this famous car can be restored," he said. "It is even possible we might get it to run again."

Thomas, the son of a North Wales vicar, was fiercely contesting the world land speed record with Malcolm Campbell when he was killed at the age of 42.

Campbell broke the record at 146 m.p.h. on the seven-mile stretch of sands. Two years later, he pushed the speed up to 150 m.p.h.

Thomas snatched the record with a speed of 169 m.p.h. in 1926 and later broke his own record with a drive of 171 m.p.h. Campbell returned later in 1926 and clocked 174 m.p.h. And Thomas was killed trying to regain the title.

The clinic, which has attracted over 200 youngsters, is sponsored by the Recreation Department, according to Bill Fitzpatrick, recreation director.

The Saturday tournament gets underway with wrestle-offs at 2 p.m. in all weight divisions. Consolation and championship matches will be held at 7 and 8 p.m.

Awards will be presented to the individual champions and the matches will be open to the public. Admission will be 25 cents for adults, 15 cents for high school students and 10 cents for grade school youngsters.

SPORT FANS!
I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW by John Behnke

Here's a little sports quiz for you . . . Everybody has heard of heavyweights, light heavyweights, welterweights, middleweights and lightweights in boxing, but it's surprising how few fans can tell you the exact weight limits for each of these divisions . . . Can you? . . . A heavyweight is anyone over 175 pounds . . . Light-heavyweights are from 161 to 175 pounds . . . Middleweights from 148 to 160 pounds . . . Welterweights, 136 to 147 pounds . . . And lightweights from 127 to 135 pounds.

Third places went to the relay teams of Robin Savage, Janie Rouman, Adrianna Holy, and Jenny Kading plus Kathy Weyenberg, Pam Kichetski, Peggy Kuehnsted, and Judy Winski — all in the 100-yard medley; Jeannie Martin in the 50-yard free style, and Leslie Swalbie in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Fourth place awards were taken by the relay team of Debbie Kichetski, Amy Savage, Eileen Connolly, and Sue Van Lieshout in the 200-yard medley; Leslie Swalby in the 100-yard butterfly; Kris Melix in the 100-yard free style; Chris Grunwald in diving; and Robin Savage in the 25-yard backstroke.

Miss Hardacker set a pair of records, as she swam the 200-yard butterfly in a record clocking of two minutes, 38.9 seconds, and then the 500-yard free style in 6:13.0.

Betsy Bates also won two events, both in diving. She accumulated 278.80 points in winning the open division title and then had a score of 285.15 to top competitors in the 15-17 year old age group.

The area championships brought together the top female swimmers from 37 YMCAs in five states—Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

Second places garnered by Appleton participants included the relay team of Ellen Savage, Miss Hardacker, Marietta Martin, and Jody Mendelsohn in the 200-yard medley; Kathy Weyenberg in the 50-yard backstroke; Peggy Kuehnsted and Marietta

South Vietnamese Special Forces troops, one of them wearing torn trousers, scale the boulders of the "Million Dollar Knoll" near the Cambodian border, 120 miles southwest of Saigon. The mountain was named by U. S. officers after hundreds of tons of explosives from artillery, B52 and other air strikes were used to drive the estimated 100-man Viet Cong company from the heights. (AP Wirephoto)

Our God," the general's casket will be removed from the hearse and placed on the front porch of the two-story Eisenhower Library for a public memorial service expected to last about 25 minutes.

Near Library

The library is across the street from the white frame house where Eisenhower grew up and the Lincoln grade school which he attended.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. Robert H. MacAskill of the First Presbyterian church of Gettysburg, Pa., and the Rev. Dean Miller of Palm Desert, Calif., Community church.

Then the casket will be carried along the broad sidewalk to the tiny chapel about 100 yards west of the library to the tune of "Army Blue" and "Lead Kindly Light."

The coffin will be placed on a temporary wooden platform built over a sunken crypt some 15 feet inside the chapel door. The body will lie next to that of the Eisenhower's first-born son, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who died of scarlet fever at the age of 3 in 1921.

Burial Uniform

Eisenhower's burial uniform of officer pink trousers and the short jacket he made famous bears only three of his many decorations—the Army Distinguished Service Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the Navy Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit.

There is room inside the chapel for only about 80 invited persons. No news coverage of the 15-minute final rites there will be permitted. A loudspeaker will carry words of the clergyman—yet to be chosen—to those outside.

Just before the benediction, a battery of cannon placed east of the library will fire a 21-gun salute. Following the benediction, a rifle squad will fire the traditional three volleys and a bugler will play "Taps."

Folded Flag

Then "West Point, Alma Mater" will be played and as the last notes fade away, Lt. Gen. V. P. Mock, 5th Army commander, will present the folded flag from the casket to Mrs. Eisenhower with the simple words uttered at all military funerals: "This flag is presented to you on behalf of a grateful nation as a token of appreciation for the honorable and faithful service rendered by your loved one."

The strains of "America the Beautiful" and "The Old Rugged Cross" will sound as the family and guests leave the chapel about 11:45 a.m.

And Dwight David Eisenhower—known to Abilene as a boy who dreamed of being a locomotive engineer but instead became commander of the greatest military force ever assembled and president of the United States—will be home for his final rest.

Czech Victory Celebration in Ice Hockey Condemned by Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government kept up its new press campaign against Czechoslovakia today and meanwhile sent its defense minister on another surprise visit to the occupied country.

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda charged that the Soviet-Czechoslovak hockey games last week were used to whip up anti-Soviet feeling and condemned this as "base and vile."

The newspaper charged that the celebration in Prague after Czechoslovakia defeated Russia in the second game of the World Hockey Championships "was a nationalistic demonstration, organized in advance, that had a far-reaching political purpose."

After the Czechoslovak victories, excited demonstrators attacked Russian occupation facilities across Czechoslovakia, smashing barracks windows and setting vehicles afire.

Crowds in Prague attacked the offices of the Soviet airline Aeroflot. Fifty-one Czechoslovak policemen were reported injured trying to halt the outbreaks.

"Nationalist Psychosis"

Komsomolskaya Pravda said the Czechoslovak press, radio and television encouraged a "nationalist psychosis" over the games. It noted that Czechoslovak television coverage was interrupted during the playing of the Soviet national anthem after the Russians won the championship; it called the interruption a "badly camouflaged gesture."

Sovietskaya Sport, the country's only daily sports newspaper, reprinted an article in Pravda Monday complaining about the Czechoslovak reaction to the games.

Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star), the armed forces newspaper, reported that Marshal Andrei Grechko, the Soviet defense minister, flew to Czechoslovakia Monday to visit Soviet headquarters there.

The report did not mention the Kremlin's current displeasure with the Czechoslovak leadership.

The Hungarian Communist party paper Nepszabadsag today picked up Soviet attacks against liberal Czechoslovak politician Jozef Smrkovsky and said the demonstrations in Prague ranked "with the most dangerous of all right-wing actions so far."

It said Czechoslovak nationalism "through its potentially threatening existence represents a danger not only for Czechoslovak-Soviet relations, but also for the relations of Czechoslovakia and the other Socialist countries."

Picking up allegations aired by the Moscow press, Nepszabadsag said: "The most startling and incomprehensible aspect of the whole affair is that this anti-Soviet demonstration has been assisted by the personal appearance of a politician of the caliber of Jozef Smrkovsky."

But the report was denied today by the Czechoslovak Parliament in Prague.

Political Bid Was 'Bitterest Moment'

out as a potential candidate.

There have been published reports that President Harry S. Truman offered the 1948 Democratic presidential nomination to Eisenhower. Truman reportedly offered to run as Eisenhower's vice presidential candidate.

Democratic Efforts

There were further efforts by the Democrats to get the general to head their ticket for the 1952 campaign.

To all these and other efforts Eisenhower said no in firm and seemingly complete tones.

In 1948, after public urgings by Leonard V. Finner, then publisher of the Manchester (N.H.) Fiery Blast Traps Miners rioted at the tunnel entrances. The crowds calmed down later.

The mine is at Barroteran, with a population of 8,000 people, about 75 miles southwest of the Texas border town of Eagle Pass.

"It was a tremendous explosion, blowing parts of the mine entrance into the air," said Dr. Emilio Lopez of the Barroteran hospital, who witnessed the blast. "We have no injured. They were either all killed at the entrance or trapped below. The lucky ones had left."

"They were able to take out the bodies of some of the dead miners because they were on their way up and near the exit."

The mining company is one of Mexico's biggest coal producers.

Earlier Rolando Villareal, the company's public relations officer, had reported that officials believed 305 miners were trapped. This figure later was reduced by company officials who made further checks.

Villareal said methane gas apparently had accumulated in one of the mine pockets and exploded at 5:45 p.m. shortly after a shift change. Three miners who had just finished work rushed back into the mine when the blast rocked houses in Barroteran. Only one came out, saying his companions were trapped by cave-ins.

Lopez said there was "a lot of confusion at first" and soldiers had to control the grief-stricken relatives. Later, "when they learned what had to be done, they calmed down and the soldiers were able to control the situation," he said.

Mine company spokesmen estimated rescue operations would take between 24 and 48 hours, but a Red Cross spokesman in Mexico City said: "If the men were very deep, it might take a week."

The Mexican government made available aircraft and supplies which were flown to the area shortly after midnight with additional Red Cross workers.

The governor of Coahuila state, Bergelon Bordusco, was on the scene supervising the rescue work.

Prange's Request to Use Alley Denied

The Appleton plan commission shortly after noon Monday was unanimous in denying a request of the H. C. Prange Co. to vacate a portion of Midway for expansion of the store's first floor level.

Earlier Homer Frazer, representing Prange's, said the store planned a 5,000 square foot addition to cover the part of Midway, an alley linking Oneida and Appleton streets, which lies behind the store.

He did not say when the project would be undertaken.

The main reason for the commission's rejection of the request was that vacation of the alley would create "a serious traffic problem" on Oneida Street.

If the street would be closed along the area occupied by the Prange store and its loading dock, huge transport trucks would have to make deliveries via Oneida Street.

Police Chief Earl O. Wolff said that traffic congestion on Oneida Street could be very serious. He said there is no question but that it would pose present and long-range problems.

The commission was told that an estimated 15 trucks a day, mostly in the morning, now make deliveries to the Prange Company using Midway Road.

It was suggested to range officials that they might consider nighttime deliveries but they frowned on this.

Members of the plan commission said while they appreciated the fact that the Prange Company was "very responsible and community-minded and had always conducted itself in the highest caliber," felt, however, that it would not be right for the general public's interest to impair the traffic flow in that part of downtown.

City planner Jack Hetu said that he felt the request should be denied explaining that the traffic congestion was an "obvious impairment."

He also pointed out that the requested vacation of Midway was not similar to that of Gimbels Brothers which is building a new store a block to the east and had received permission to vacate an alleyway.

The commission also felt that any traffic congestion by trucks on Oneida Street would hurt the proposed Oneida Street Bridge project and future plans for improving the movement of traffic in and through the downtown area with Appleton and Oneida streets as key carriers.

Squad Car Damaged When It Strikes Deer

The front of the 1968 auto was damaged.

Youth Enters Plea of Guilty

Sentence Is Delayed For LU Student On Drug Charge

Horace Marchant, 20, an Evanston, Ill., student at Lawrence University, Monday pleaded guilty to a reduced drug charge.

Outagamie County Judge Raymond P. Dohr ordered a presentence investigation by the State Department of Health and Social Services. He did not set a date for sentencing. Marchant is free on bond.

Marchant originally was charged with selling a dangerous drug without a prescription on Feb. 10, in Appleton. The charge was brought by a young Appleton Police Department informant.

An affidavit of prejudice was brought against Judge Nick F. Schaefer when Marchant made his first court appearance, last month.

Dohr dismissed the original charge, ruling that the criminal complaint brought against the youth was too vague in that it did not state the specific dangerous drug involved or to whom the drug was alleged to have been sold.

The district attorney's office then charged Marchant with possessing a dangerous drug without a prescription. The second charge constitutes a misdemeanor. The original charge was a felony.

The Wisconsin State Crime Laboratory, which examined a pill Marchant had, found it to contain an amphetamine, police said.

Youths Held for Vandalism, Theft

Six teen-agers, two each from Appleton, Kimberly and Little Chute, are being held in juvenile detention in the Outagamie County Jail in connection with a recent wave of vandalism, thefts and burglaries in the three communities.

At least two of the youths are believed to have been involved in the theft of money from parking meters in Appleton during the past three weeks. Several also were implicated in the recent spree of vandalism and thefts from vending machines in area schools.

The youths were taken into custody Sunday, following combined investigations by Little Chute, Appleton and Kimberly police. Authorities said they questioned some of the youths Sunday.

Committee Plans to Review Airport Car Rental Space

Legality Questioned in Action Proposed by the County Board Unit to Limit Agency Space

After receiving a letter questioning the legality of its action, the Outagamie County Board's airport committee agreed Monday to reconsider its decision to allow only one car rental agency to lease counter space at the airport terminal.

The committee will meet April 7 with representatives of Avis and Hertz car rental agencies to explain why it was allowing only National Car Rental to maintain a counter within the terminal. National's one-year contract expires May 1, 1969, and the committee agreed to offer James Gustman, National's local representative, another contract.

Avis and Hertz representatives were told several weeks ago that they could maintain only telephones and a certain number of car stalls because of a space shortage at the airport terminal. Both firms rejected the offers to lease counter space a year ago.

The local Avis representative, Oshkosh Auto and Truck Rental Inc., Oshkosh, sought reconsideration in early March. The matter was later referred to the firm's Milwaukee-based attorney.

Violation of Law

Ralph J. Podell, the Milwaukee attorney, wrote the county board, indicating he felt the county may be creating a monopoly, and its action may "constitute a violation of the antitrust laws."

Podell sought the meeting and indicated he felt the county could profit more by allowing three firms in the terminal.

The committee has contended there is not enough space for three counters, and that de-planing traffic is insufficient now to support three agencies.

They reiterated this view this morning.

Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, questioned: "Where was he (Avis) the other year" when the committee three times sought proposals from the firm.

Too Crowded

Supv. John Dietz, Appleton, committee chairman, noted the three could not make a profit at the airport. He also said the airport is too crowded during peak periods, especially during the early morning flights.

Dietz said if the county gave the other two agencies the 50 square feet that Podell recommended, it would crowd the terminal even more.

Committeemen suggested they might go along with a plan for the agencies to build out from the terminals at their own expense.

Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, warned the committee the Federal Aviation Agency might not condone the county keeping the other two agencies out of the terminal even for another year.

"You can't wait; you see how strict the FAA is on your fixed-base operators," he commented. Podell asked for a three-year contract, beginning May 1, for 10 per cent of the net income or $250 per month, whichever is greater.

Avis Representative

Miss Lois Johnson, local representative of Avis, was at the meeting this morning but left before the committee discussed Podell's letter.

In other business, the committee learned that contractors interested in bidding on the approximately 4,700 feet of taxiways for the airport's north-west-south east runway will be able to pick up the engineer's plan after Wednesday in the county clerk's office.

The bids will be opened at 11 a.m. April 17 at the courthouse, when the committee meets.

Ralph H. Burke, Inc., Chicago-based engineers, prepared the plans for the taxiways.

The committee also agreed to build a small building of concrete block or other material, depending on the lower price. The lowest bid will be accepted, it agreed. The building, to be about 8 feet by 8 feet, will house the approach lighting system lights and regulators.

Fire Destroys Barn on Rural Hilbert Farm

Cattle Saved by Neighbors, Cause of Blaze Undetermined

STOCKBRIDGE — Fire destroyed the barn on the Alfred Birkholtz farm, route 1, Hilbert, about four miles northeast of here about 4:15 p.m. Monday.

The herd of dairy cattle was rescued from the burning building by neighbors. Birkholtz was attending an auction sale at the time of the fire.

Fire departments from Stockbridge, Chilton and Sherwood answered the alarm, but the fire was burning out of control when they arrived and within 15 minutes the building was destroyed.

The fire was discovered by Birkholtz's daughter when she saw flames and heard rafters falling. Cause of the blaze is not known.

An undetermined amount of hay and straw was stored in the barn. Damage estimate was not available.

Firemen were able to save a milkhouse attached to the building, as well as the farm home. The animals were taken to a vacant barn on the farm of a relative living nearby.

Women Moved From Jail

Too Many Inmates

Three women inmates in the Outagamie County Jail were scheduled to be transferred to the Winnebago County Jail today to make room for an overload of juvenile inmates.

Sheriff Clavin L. Spice said Monday there were nine boys in the male juvenile detention cell, which is set up to accommodate four or five persons. Six of the youths were placed in detention Sunday, in connection with burglaries, thefts, and vandalism in Little Chute, Kimberly, and Appleton.

Spice said several of the youths had to sleep on spare mattresses on the cell floor.

Two More Rooms

Two of the women prisoners Monday were in the female lockup section and the third, who is serving a three-year term under Huber Law (work release) was in a separate section of the jail.

Spice said all three women will be transferred, to the Winnebago County Jail at Oshkosh to make two more rooms available for juvenile boys. He said it is possible the woman serving under Huber Law might remain in the Winnebago County Jail since she is working in Oshkosh.

The other two women will be returned to jail here where there is ample room, Spice explained.

He said Winnebago County will charge Outagamie County board for the women prisoners. The arrangement, Spice said, was worked out with the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department.

Prisoners have had to be transferred to other area jails in the past, Spice said, but not within the past few years.

Continuances Granted For Youths Charged With Stealing Auto

Continuances were granted in Outagamie County Court Branch Monday for two Milwaukee youths charged with taking a car owned by a Medina man on Feb. 26.

Chris D. Nelson and James W. Wingers, both 18, are free on bonds. They have a court-appointed attorney, Judge Nick F. Schaefer, at the request of the attorney, continued the case to April 15 to allow the attorney further time to check into the matter.

Sheriff's investigators allege the youths took a 1963 auto owned by David Gruber, from the Gruber home. The car was recovered in Hibbing, Minn. There was some damage to the vehicle.

Nelson and Wingers were brought here from Milwaukee to face the charges.

This Barn on the Alfred Birkholtz farm, route 1, Hilbert, was consumed by flames of undetermined origin Monday afternoon. The blaze was burning out of control before it was discovered and firemen from Stockbridge, Chilton and Sherwood were summoned to the scene. Firemen saved the farm home and a milkhouse. (Thiel Photo)

Ike Credited His Successes To 'Teacher' Gen. Fox Connor

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

The decisive influence in Dwight D. Eisenhower's life as a professional soldier is a man whose name is little known today, Gen. Fox Connor.

"He was my teacher," Eisenhower often said.

In fact, Connor was his commanding officer in the 1920's. In calling him "my teacher," Eisenhower meant that Connor broadened his understanding of the relation between war and geopolitics, revived an interest in military history that had been stifled in West Point, and introduced him to what Eisenhower called "the great world of writing and thinking."

To the end of his days, Eisenhower revered Gen. Connor. Their relationship constitutes one of the warmest and most touching chapters in Eisenhower's story.

Businessmen Predict Bigger Sales, Profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businessmen are radiating optimism despite rising costs, record interest rates and high taxes. Three out of four predict bigger sales and profits for their firms in the second half of 1969. Nation's Business magazine reported Sunday. Most of the executives also foresee further price rises, according to the quarterly outlook survey conducted by the magazine, which is published by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

though individual property owners have the right to use and enjoy their property, there is a time when the interest of all the citizens of a city, county or state government is so great that the public cannot be right-fully denied use of the land. Use of the rule grew particularly during the period of railroad construction in the latter 19th Century when lines had to be cut through the lands of many property owners.

Southeast Asia Import Fermented Soybean Food May Be Valuable Antibiotic Source

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A fermented soybean food from Southeast Asia is being studied by Agriculture Department scientists as a possible source of antibiotics to fight intestinal diseases and other maladies.

The food is tempeh, originated in Indonesia. It has been under study at the Agricultural Research Service's laboratory at Peoria, Ill.

The ARS said in a report today that a mold used in preparation of the soy food produces antibacterial compounds which may help increase disease resistance.

Special Tests
Some of the compounds were tested against 25 species of bacteria, the ARS report said.

Eleven showed effects from the materials and nine stopped growing entirely.

Scientists said four of the bacteria types which were inhibited by the compounds "are typical inhabitants of the human intestinal tract."

The soy food was included in an ARS study of oriental fermented foods to find possible diet supplements for use in the United States and other countries, officials said.

War Prisoner
The ARS report said that during World War II Dutch scientists observed beneficial effects among dysentery patients who ate tempeh while being held as prisoners of war.

"One scientist, a prisoner of himself, reported later that many undernourished prisoners found soybeans almost indigestible, but even sick prisoners could digest tempeh," the ARS said.

Officials said the Peoria research report is the first about antibacterial compounds produced by the tempeh mold.

Six Youths Held For Vandalism, Theft Spree how many of the youths were involved in thefts from 158 parking meters in Appleton during recent weeks.

Donald Heinritz, parking meter superintendent, said this morning that between $300 and $500 in change was taken from the meters, most of which were located in the city's parking lots. The meters also sustained considerable damage, he said.

Window Smashed

Four of the youths are believed to have broken into Kimberly High School early Sunday, and caused about $300 damage.

A rear, plate glass window was broken to gain entry, according to Kimberly Police Chief Donald Schmeck. Light fixtures and glass in the trophy case were smashed and the contents of three fire extinguishers sprayed inside the building.

Schmeck said a vending machine was broken and the main office was ransacked.

Little Chute Police Chief Robert Nechodom said several of the youths are believed to have been involved in two burglaries this month at Little Chute High School.

On March 22, entry was gained into the school by breaking a rear window, but nothing was believed to have been taken.

Money Stolen

Five days later, the school was entered and about $70 was taken from two desk drawers in the shop area and $75 from two vending machines.

Damage to vending machines at the various schools that were burglarized in recent weeks in Appleton, Kimberly, and Little Chute could run into several thousand dollars, police said.

A spokesman for Karras Vending Service said this morning that damage totaled about $1,500 on only two machines that were pried open last week at Einstein Junior High School.

Several of the machines had to be returned to the factory for repairs, he said. Money obtained from the school machines is expected to total several hundred dollars.

Police in all three communities said they will continue to question the six youths. A detective said it is possible more youths will be taken into custody as the investigation continues.

Studded Tires Must Be Removed April 15

Studded snow tires must be removed from motor vehicles throughout Wisconsin by April 15.

Once removed, precautions should be taken in storing tires, according to Ted LaValley, American Automobile Association (AAA) service manager.

Studded tires should be clearly marked so that they may be placed back on the same wheel next fall. This must be done, since studs wear at a slight angle and their effectiveness will be lost if the tire is placed on a different wheel.

The holes in which the studs are seated could also become enlarged and the studs might drop out if the tire is placed on a different wheel.

Studs can not be replaced once they have dropped from a tire or have become worn.

In storing snow or studded snow tires, the AAA recommends motorists place them in a cool place, such as a basement or a shaded area in a garage. Tires should never be exposed to sunlight and should be placed flat on their side and not stored in a rolling or upright position.

The holes in which the studs are seated could also become enlarged and the studs might drop out if the tire is placed on a different wheel.

Studs can not be replaced once they have dropped from a tire or have become worn.

Bear Creek Loses Fight for School

Dissolution of District Upheld

MADISON — The State Supreme Court has upheld the decision of a Shawano County court turning down the Bear Creek School District's fight to stop the proposed dissolution of the district.

In an unanimous decision, written by Justice Nathan Heffernan, the high court held that legal grounds do not exist for over-turning the long-fought decision.

"We are satisfied that the (district's) attorney has ably presented the position of his clients in expressing their dissatisfaction," wrote Heffernan for the court.

"However, under the guidelines of school reorganization as established by the Legislature, the mere dissatisfaction, although perhaps well-founded, of a portion of the community does not constitute legal grounds for upsetting an order," the decision stated.

1967 Order

The court case arose out of an August, 1967 order of the agency school committee directing that the school district was to be dissolved and with the exception of specified lands, attached to the Clintonville School District.

The following month the order was appealed by the Bear Creek District to the appeal board of the state Department of Public Instruction. That appeal was turned down and the district appealed once more, this time to the Shawano County Circuit Court of Judge Andrew Parnell.

After an initial hearing, Parnell dismissed the complaint on its merits and the district pursued his decision that there was no substantial issue to be tried to the supreme court.

Improper Procedure

The high court held that the complaint of the district that improper procedures had been followed because of the exemption of the specified lands in the initial order was invalid. State law requires that an order is invalid if it includes land incorporated in another pending district organization, the high court noted.

Evidence was supplied that the lands in question were planned for inclusion in the New London School District at that time, the supreme court said.

If state Superintendent of Public Instruction William Kahl threatened to withhold integrated aids from the Bear Creek district, if they didn't go along with the order, it was clearly within refined statutory holders of his office, the court added.

Decisions Made

The decisions were made following legally conducted meetings and in proper statutory manner and cannot be attacked under state law, Heffernan held for the court.

Public notice was properly given of the proceedings during the course of the fight, he noted, turning back an allegation by the district that the new paper used to publish notices had insufficient circulation in the district.

The court's decision also maintained that "it would appear to be irrelevant" whether or not the coordinator of the agency school committee allegedly promised the Clintonville district extra aids, if the Bear Creek decision was not appealed.

In the same fashion, the justices turned back charges from the Bear Creek district that local residents were misled as to the nature of the proceedings.

The actual orders issued, hearing notices and other information in evidence are clear in their explanation of the matter, the court said.

runaway returned to home for boys

A 15-year-old Appleton boy who last month ran away from the Home Home at Wittenberg and later was involved in the theft of two cars, was returned to the home Monday following an appearance in Outagamie County Juvenile Court.

The boy had been sent to the home for boys in February, after he was found delinquent. The delinquency finding was renewed Monday.

George Hanlon, an Outagamie County sheriff's investigator, testified that the Appleton youth was one of three boys who ran away from the home on March 14.

The boys stole a car from Wittenberg and abandoned it when it went into a ditch near New London. The car sustained about $235 damage, of which the Appleton youth was ordered to pay a third.

A New London resident picked up the youths as they hitchhiked on U.S. 45 after running the stolen auto into the ditch. He told police two of the youths threatened him with a knife and a length of chain. He later told authorities the Appleton boy was not involved in the threat.

The Debate on the Beer Tax

Only one of the 50 states, North Carolina, does not levy any sort of a direct tax on cigarettes, and the legislature now has before it a proposal for a five-cent a pack tax.

"The proposal for a new cigarette tax reportedly will encounter considerable opposition," Tax Foundation Inc. commented matter-of-factly the other day in a summary of state fiscal problems.

The reason, of course, is that North Carolina is a center of tobacco raising and cigarette manufacturing, and such things have a way of being translated into political power.

All of this is interesting in view of that part of Gov. Warren Knowles' revenue package which asks for an increase of $2 in the present $1 a barrel state tax on beer, a tax which has stood without change since 1938. There was quite a bit of crying in the beer the other day when a legislative committee took a stab at trying to move the beer tax increase along.

Said the representatives of the brew-

Meeting the Needs of the Disadvantaged

In response to the demands of black militants who had seized university facilities and who probably were to blame for some broken windows and fires, the Board of Governors of Rutgers University in New Jersey announced that in the future they will admit any and all "educationally and economically disadvantaged" graduates of high schools in Newark, New Brunswick and Camden, where the university has facilities. This is a shotgun approach to an immense problem and it isn't very likely to succeed.

The Board of Governors said nothing about special courses on the campuses to help the disadvantaged students catch up to the rest. But this is exactly the major problem and one of the main causes of the demands for more black studies and even separate facilities.

Students who have had substandard elementary and secondary preparations, not to mention the problems that arise from the disadvantaged home and neighborhood, simply cannot meet the standards of many colleges and universities. This is

$36,000 a Year for Otepka

President Nixon's appointment of Otto Otepka to a $36,000 a year seat on the do-nothing Subversive Activities Control Board might be described as what is called a finesse in politics. Strong advocates of a position are supposed to be satisfied by such an act but the real question also is avoided.

Otepka has been involved in a six-year controversy with the State Department, where he once held a top post as security evaluator. Depending on the point of view, Otepka was either demoted by former Secretary of State Dean Rusk because he passed on executive branch files to a Senate investigating committee or because he sought Senate committee action on what he regarded as security risks when the State Department would not act.

Since then, Otepka has been doing clerical work in the State Department. The Civil Service Commission turned down his appeal last fall, but Otepka decided against a further appeal while waiting to see what course the new president would take in the matter. The appointment to the SACB is the answer.

"It's just so beautiful — putting him in the SACB, with that resounding title and no

A small gathering, styling itself a mass meeting, assembled around a table in Freeman's Hall, Saturday evening last, and nominated Matthias Werner for County Judge.

Mr. Werner declined the empty honor, as he is about to remove to Iowa.

A few evenings later, a secret caucus in the interest of the Mortgage Brokers and Note Scalpers was held and Louis Schintz, Esq., partner of Anson Ballard, was trotted out upon the course. Mr. Schintz is qualified for the post, although he says he is not, and if elected, will no doubt enjoy the benefits and experience of his partner, who is adept in dealing with Widows, Orphans and the unfortunate poor who are compelled to borrow money on such terms as the brokers dictate.

It is proper to add that Mr. Schintz also is "Republican" in his politics, although he devotes little time to the consideration of anything save Bonds, Mortgages or Tax Certificates, a peculiarity derived from his estimable partner!

Police Handling Fire Calls

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I read with interest an article that appeared in The Post-Crescent last week which stated that someone felt that we did not need a chief engineer at the New London Fire Station and that all phone calls could be handled by the New London Police Department. If this took place the Police Department would have to answer all calls for the Fire Department and in turn operate the radio to report the fire to the fireman. Then one of the engineers at home or at work would have to drive to the Fire Station, open the doors and take the fire engine out, which could take five to ten minutes. Whereas our present chief engineer stays at the Fire Station and could operate the radio and have the fire truck out in about one

Kraft Writes
First Breakthrough for Political Settlement in Vietnam Is Achieved

BY JOSEPH KRAFT
WASHINGTON — The important thing about the latest Vietnamese developments is that the Nixon administration is going for the political way out — not merely the military way down.

The President is aiming at the slow — but sure — exit by a settlement that will in some way change the nature of the South Vietnamese regime. He has, so far at least, not accepted the easy — but dubious — course of covering the mistakes of the past by going for a stalemate in the war.

The chief sign of the political emphasis lies in the press conference given Tuesday in Saigon by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. The mere fact that peace news was being made in Saigon was of itself significant. For the one thing Saigon can do — that no other capital, including Washington, can do — is negotiate on arrangements for the political future of South Vietnam.

READY TO NEGOTIATE

That implicit fact was explicitly underlined by President Thieu. General Thieu said that he was prepared to negotiate "a political solution," in direct, secret talks with the National Liberation Front — the Communist-dominated insurgency movement in South Vietnam.

That commitment takes on tremendous significance against the evolution of the past. Not very long ago, the Thieu regime was treating the

Kraft

Liberation Front as a gang of "bandits and terrorists" who could be dealt with only on an individual basis after they had laid down their arms — that is to say, surrendered.

It was considered a major concession only six weeks ago when Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky said the Saigon regime would deal with the Front as an entity provided all North Vietnamese troops were pulled out of South Vietnam. Now President Thieu is ready to negotiate with the Front, without any advance condition. It is logical to suppose that in time the Saigon leaders will extend even further openings to the leaders of the Front for some kind of political collaboration.

Sooner or later, the leaders of the Front are bound to respond — and respond favorably — to this kind of evolution. That much is acknowledged by virtually everybody who has been in touch with Tran Buu Khiem, the chief of the Front delegation to the Paris peace talks.

Khiem told this columnist, in the midst of a violent attack on the Saigon leadership during an interview about a month ago, that the Front would accept changes by the men of the Thieu regime "even at the eleventh hour."

He then added: "Even at the eleventh hour and the 59th minute."

BOUND TO BE SLOW

But the process of blocking out a compromise between Saigon and the Front is bound to be slow and full of difficult times. And in the interim it is essential to keep the goal of a political settlement firmly and clearly in mind.

For there is another prescription, seemingly most attractive, which is now being put forward by the hawks of Saigon and the Pentagon and State Department in a last effort to make it seem they were right all along. According to this view, all the United States needs to do is to build up the South Vietnamese army, and then begin the withdrawal of American troops.

The South Vietnamese forces would supposedly be strong enough to hold the other side in a kind of military stalemate. There would be no need to make the painful compromises and adjustments that a political settlement would require.

The trouble with that view, of course, is that the stalemate is no more likely to be achieved than the other military prospects put forward by the hawks. By following the hawks' prescription, the American role in the war would go down. But it would not go out, and it might have to go up again.

It is a far better thing, difficult and slow as the course ahead is bound to be, to move towards a political settlement. And it is encouraging that President Nixon has so far had the strength and confidence to resist the pressure for a quick fix that would almost certainly lead to things getting worse very soon after they got better.

Republican Report
Republican Majority
In Legislature Bears
Down on State Budget

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — Capitol watchers see increasing signs that the administration of Gov. Knowles and the Republican majority leadership of the legislature are heading for a collision course on state fiscal affairs.

The hint at the governor's recent news conference in which he displayed irritation about the attitude of the Republican controlled legislative joint finance committee's attitude on the deficiency budget question was plain enough.

Those men, he said with an asperity that is rare for him, appear to be "robbing Peter to pay Paul." They cut authorized appropriations for the last three months of this fiscal year in a variety of services, agencies and institutions, in a desperate maneuver to make good a $20 million deficiency they will be required to pass a tax bill to finance it.

COULD PROVIDE FUNDS

But that is not necessarily true. They could add the school aid deficiency money requirement to the general budget tax bill that they will enact later in the year. It would make the tax imposition a little greater, but it is unlikely that the average man would notice a change of two to three per cent in the increase when the whole tax package will approach $400 million or more.

Or they could expedite deliberations on the budget and the revenue measure, put the new revenue laws into effect earlier than July, and pick up the school aid deficiency.

But there are other irritants in the relations of the legislature with the governor representing the same political party that are becoming increasingly visible. As the men around Knowles see it, the finance committee is bearing down with conspicuous zeal in budget request pruning when the men who are closest to the executive department come before it.

TWO EXAMPLES LISTED

There were two examples last week when the finance committee cut deeply and painfully into the budgets that Knowles had recommended for Secretary McGown of the Department of Administration, and Chairman Joseph Fagan of the Department of Labor, Industry and Human Relations. McGown is Knowles' right hand man and advisor. Fagan is also a Knowles appointee and has carried out with zeal and energy some of the governor's programs for the improvement of conditions and the maintenance of peace in the Milwaukee Negro inner core.

It may be that the finance committee members, none of whom probably has any special knowledge about the minority problem in Milwaukee, are simply indifferent to such programs because of ignorance.

But there is also an appearance given here that the committee is hitting with particular zeal the men who are closest to Knowles and are known to be among his most confident advisers.

Altogether, it is a strange way to run a railroad, as the old saying goes, or a political administration representing a party that has won with fair regularity lately but not with such margins as to make it possible to wage intramural fights with impunity.

Wyngaard

in aids pledged to the local schools for this fiscal year.

RENEGING ON DECISIONS

On the face of it, there is a good deal to be said for the governor's position. The legislative financiers are going back on their word. They appropriated the money to the state services two years ago. The men of the finance committee today are largely the same as those who made the decisions in 1967. But now they propose to reduce some of those funds, after the receiving agencies made their plans in good faith. They are saying in effect, that a dollar spent at home is somehow more indispensable than the dollar spent on a state service.

They are saying also, in effect, that they stand in greater fear of political retribution from their home-folks with regard to local school budget difficulties, than about compromising the operating state services.

Some of these men explain, when they discuss the matter, that they are unwilling to take the brunt of taxpayer resentment against two state tax increase programs in a single legislative session. What they mean is that unless they raise the school aids through the reduction of other budgets,

Strictly Personal Subjective Ideas Are Often Most Powerful

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS
My column some weeks ago, about "morality" and "justice" taking precedence over laws, brought quite a few brickbats from readers who deplored my use of such loose and subjective words as "morality" and "justice."

Yet there is nothing else we can do. I cited the American Revolution as an example of men who rejected the British laws against the Colonies precisely on these grounds — that they violated justice and morality.

These two words, unfortunately, are like what St. Augustine said about the concept of "time." No philosopher can adequately define "time," but every common man knows what it is, if you don't ask him. Some ideas defy adequate description and definition, yet we all have a gut-knowledge of what they mean.

Morality may be "subjective" in some areas; we may disagree about this or that application — but in its widest sense, as a right relation among people, there is a broad consensus among humanity, and even throughout the ages.

The world gradually agreed that feudalism was not a right relation among people — and so mercantile capitalism arose, which was a great improvement. The world gradually agreed that slavery was not a right relation between people, and eventually it was abolished everywhere.

Even our weak efforts at "internal laws of warfare" are movements of morality, because there is no "law" between nations, and can never be. But we recognize that innocent civilians should not be killed, that open cities should not be bombed, that prisoners should be exchanged rather than summarily shot, and so on.

The same is true of "justice." We may disagree about specific applications, but all humanity recognizes a "natural law" that goes beyond positive law. What the Nazis set up in Germany was superficially "legal," but the rest of the world knew it was hideously unjust. Indeed, man's latent sense of justice (feeble and confused as it sometimes is) has been responsible for every development in self-government and social welfare.

Because an idea is "subjective," it is not necessarily less legitimate than some "objective" law passed by the state. Love is subjective, yet the strongest force in our lives; faith is subjective, yet without it we would not have formed a new kind of nation against such formidable odds.

Law is the instrument, ideally, through which justice and morality become embodied in the commonweal; and laws themselves are legitimate only when they serve this purpose. When a law itself violates the spirit of man's nature, it must be repulsed if it cannot be repealed.

Christ Offer of Love Unaccepted

During these noonday meditations, we want to direct your attention to some of the people He have for them? First of all, there is Annas, the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the high priest. He held the office of high priest at the same time as his son-in-law. Because of his age, he was looked upon as the high priest in all spiritual matters by the Jews while Caiaphas was regarded as the high priest by the government. In either case, both of them were involved at this time.

Asks About Teachings
Since Annas was concerned primarily about the spiritual matters in the community, he asked Jesus about His disciples and about His teaching. It seems strange, of course, that this is the first time Annas ever asked Jesus about these things because he should have done so long before.

But Jesus answers his question just the same. He says that He has nothing to hide; that He had always spoken openly about His purpose and message; that He had never done anything in secret; nor had ever said anything that should cause them to be suspicious. Jesus said, "I have spoken publicly to the world. I have always taught in a synagogue or in the temple, where all the Jews meet, and I haven't said anything in secret. Why do you ask Me? Ask those who heard Me; they know what I said to them."

The moment He said that, one of the attendants standing near Jesus slapped His face. He asked, "Is that how You answer the high priest?" . . . In His defense, Jesus said He had done no evil and was guilty of no wrong.

After Jesus had His hearing before Annas, He is taken to Caiaphas.

And who do we find here for Jesus to look at?

We're told that all the ruling priests, the elders and Bible scholars had been called together here, and were all bound and determined to get some testimony against Jesus to put Him to death, even if the testimony had to be false. And false it was! They couldn't even find people who would be consistent in their telling lies about Him.

Finally, two men came forward and said, "We heard Him say that He could tear down the temple of God and then build it up again in three days." . . . And all the while, the people gathered here were saying in their hearts, "Crucify Him, crucify Him."

Jesus Answers
Finally, Caiaphas stepped forward and asked Jesus, "Don't you have anything to say to this? Are these men telling the truth?" But Jesus didn't answer a word. . . . Then Caiaphas became a little angry and shouts this command to the Lord: "Swear by the living God and tell us: Are You the Promised Savior, the Son of God?" And without a moment's hesitation, Jesus said: "I am." He made it unmistakably clear to these people that He was everything that He had been saying about Himself; especially, that He was the Savior of the World.

These are the kind of people that Jesus was looking at late that night on His way to Calvary. They weren't the kind of people that He could call His friends, not because Jesus didn't want to be their friend, but because they wanted nothing to do with Him.

I don't know all the thoughts that went through Jesus' mind that night, but I do know this much. As He looked at Annas and Caiaphas, the ruling priest and elders and Jewish court, He wanted so much to shower them with His love. He wanted to touch their dark hearts with the light of the Gospel; the message of forgiveness. He wanted them to realize the wrong they were doing. He told them of the time when He would come with great glory to judge the living and the dead and you can just feel the concern that He had for their souls because He knew that if they continued to hate and lie and cheat and be overcome with bitterness, they would be lost forever. Patiently and calmly and lovingly He looked at them and pleaded with them.

Was the look of love accepted? No, it wasn't! Not only does the warning go unheeded, but there is no response at all to His pleading and His look of love. It's despised and rejected. Indeed, they made it very difficult for the look of love from the Savior's pleading eyes to have any effect at all!

Honest Questions
But lest we become too critical of these people and too comfortable with ourselves, we might do well to ask ourselves a few honest questions about what the Savior might sometimes see in us and how He might also want to look at us.

For example, do we permit hatred and prejudice toward our fellow men to fill our hearts so that there just isn't much room for the love of Jesus? The answer to that sometimes has to be a resounding "yes!" . . . Do we sometimes find ourselves standing outside looking in because of sin and temptation?

Again, the answer to that is "yes!" Do we sometimes drift back, deeper and deeper into the shadows of spiritual darkness because we want to? And do we sometimes find ourselves saying things and doing things which are contrary to the teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ? Again the answer has to be an unqualified "yes." And if that is true, then we are doing the same thing that those people did in the high priest's palace, and we're just as guilty as they are. We're making it difficult for the look of love to really penetrate our hearts.

And yet the Savior continues to look at us with eyes of love and mercy and kindness and forgiveness. Throughout his earthly ministry, He looked with love to so many people: to little children; to a woman whose reputation was anything but respectable; to an untouchable leper; to a little cheat of a man named Zachaeus; to those in the palace; to a condemned criminal and even to those who put Him to death. Today He looks at us with this same look of love.

Hatfield Declines VIP Treatment at Ike's Rites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mark Hatfield, D-Ore., waited in the cold with his wife and four children for more than an hour to pay tribute to Dwight D. Eisenhower at Washington National Cathedral.

Hatfield declined VIP treatment which would have allowed him to bypass the long line of persons waiting to enter the cathedral Sunday.

Hatfield said he recalled his days as an enlisted Navy man when officers sometimes took advantage of their rank to go to the head of a line.

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

This letter should have been written in March of 1968 instead of March, 1969. This is in reference to our Kimberly High School Papermaker basketball team and Coach Jack Wippich, who have made it to the State Tournament two years in a row. What a tremendous effort this is for a team and coach! It is really something in this basketball crazy Fox River Valley area. Jack and his basketball team are to be sincerely congratulated for their fine performance along with our student body and our senior citizen spectators. We all witnessed the discipline set forth by Coach Jack Wippich in March of 1968 when the game was over and the basketball ended up in the bleachers. The local constabulary could not get the ball back, so Coach Wippich went over to the bleacher area, held out his hands and out came the ball. This is the discipline he demands and gets from the players as well as the student body. So, a very hearty congratulations to Jack Wippich and his basketball

Eisenhower Gave Us Lessons in Freedom

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Today we weep for freedom. A freedom so large that it needs no eternal flame or mule drawn procession to convince a mourning nation it has suffered a loss. President Eisenhower is dead and with him a dignity before whom no American flag could be defiled, no American Soldier or his widow desecrated, no communist chants uttered.

How quickly now we hear our General's bi-partisan stress. Even in death there are those who would profit from a man who stood for freedom, those who would attempt to convince a nation he had no real convictions, or that he might have endorsed the catastrophic course our nation has plotted for itself.

In his own words he warned Adlai Stevenson, "How dare he . . ." when Mr. Stevenson im-

Kimberly

Could anyone who heard him have doubted that he spoke the truth? Now when a nation is unpunished and told it is sick and corrupt and stands for the abuse of its own — who will stand up and say, "How dare they?" It is easier to shut the door, keep silent or even allow that treason is worth an audience.

While General Eisenhower was helping win WW II, he was assuring all Americans of a place where men could be free, free even to protest a cause that hides behind anarchy, treason and unlicensed criminality.

While our commentators and newsmen eulogize, why are they so quick to assure us that it took all those little men to actually create and sustain an Eisenhower. Why have they neglected to include a man of stature? Mr. Eisenhower said, "it would be easier to drive a wedge between brothers than between Richard Nixon and myself. Can't we see that now when Mr. Nixon emulates Mr

Eisenhower he emulates the very causes for freedom.

Even the sign that stood for freedom, the V for victory over tyranny, has been defiled by dirty, despicable persons who say they love America — their V stands for peace and love, they say, and yet they would create hate, internal strife and destroy the freedom that made their hideous protest possible.

Today we told our children that we will fly our flag for 30 days to in some small way pay tribute to a man who helped make it possible for our flag to fly at all.

You see, he grew in poverty and loved his parents, he experienced education and aspired to lead, he fought with pride and survived to see freedom preserved with a joy that made Americans weep. He was our 34th President.

Thank you Mr. Eisenhower, our General and President, for the lessons in freedom. We pray we will be able to pass them to our children with the conviction you passed them to us.

We will miss you more than we can say.

To Your Good Health Listen to Your Doctor On Anti-Depressants

BY GEORGE THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: All my life I have suffered from mental depression and as I grow older it gets worse. I am 69.

Four years ago the doctor started me on an anti-depressant which has helped me wonderfully. (Two a day.)

Now I am wondering if it is

all right to take any drug indefinitely. Have made several efforts to stop using it, but always with bad withdrawal effects. I just seem to "fold up."

But my doctor says to continue with it. What do you think?—Mrs. R.S.

While the anti-depressants usually are a short-term type of medication, to bridge an emotional gap, they can be and have been taken for prolonged periods.

In your case, your problem is one of long standing, and long-term treatment is called for. Your doctor knows your particular reactions. He would have discontinued the drug if he thought it necessary.

As it is, he sees the medicine doing what it is supposed to do, and sees no harm. That's a wordy way of saying I can't see any reason why you shouldn't keep on with the medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For the benefit of the person who complained of too much gas—in my case it was coffee and nothing else.—M.B.

Quite true in many cases and often overlooked.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have low blood sugar and have been on a diet (high protein) for a year. They ran another blood sugar test last week and it is still low. Will I have to stay on this diet the rest of my life? I have lost weight on it.

I also have partial Addison's disease and take cortisone for it. Could this have any bearing on the low blood sugar?—Mrs. E.H.

Yes, Addison's disease (which involves the adrenal gland) is one factor in low blood sugar—not in all cases, and not the only cause of low blood sugar. But the adrenals have much to do with sugar metabolism. Addison's disease means these glands are functioning at below-normal level.

I suspect that you will have to be on the high protein diet indefinitely, but the caloric value can be increased by eating more of the foods allowed in your diet, especially fats. This should prevent further loss of weight without disturbing your blood sugar control.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I see that you have a booklet called "How You Can Control Arthritis." There is an arthritis drive going on in our city, and I want to know if this is a cause worth working for. Isn't all that can be done already being done?—Mrs. J.J.C.

It is a cause most decidedly worth working for. Among the things that need to be done are: further research until we find some clues to what causes arthritis; further search for a cure, if possible, rather than merely controlling a case; establishment of more centers specializing in rheumatology; more education of people, for various purposes. For one, too many people jump to the conclusion that they have arthritis

Your Money's Worth

Small Traders Turned Down by Stock Brokers

BY SYLVIA PORTER

If you are a newcomer to the stock market planning to trade in and out with your nestegg of a few hundred or a few thousand dollars, get set for a blunt "you're not wanted" response from an increasing number of responsible brokers. In fact, the odds are the heaviest ever that one or more brokers you approach will flatly refuse to execute your orders.

Here's the situation as it exists in Wall Street today:

— A fat minority of 42 per cent of New York Stock Exchange member firms now impose restrictions of some type on the minimum purchase orders they will accept from new customers. This is the highest percentage in history. More than 8 per cent also place restrictions on buy-sell orders from established customers.

— While there are no records to indicate the number which in the past have had limitations on new customer orders, an informed guess is that the proportion was under 10 per cent.

OCT Sales

— The requirements on mini-

Porter

mum purchases are aimed particularly at trades in the over-the-counter market.

— Almost 15 per cent of the NYSE's member firms require initial orders totaling $1,000 to $5,000.

— About 1½ to 2 per cent of the member firms are now taking no new customers at all.

— Other firms—less than 1 per cent, though—require initial orders in the $250,000 range and thus restrict themselves to institutional customers only.

These are some of the highlights of an unpublished study by the Big Board to find out how its member firms are now treating the small investor (defined in this case as an investor with at least $1,000 of investment cash). It dramatically shows that a direct result of the paperwork deluge which has swept over Wall Street in the past several months has been mounting discrimination against the little trader.

For understandable reasons, spokesmen for small investors are up in arms. For instance, Thomas E. O'Hara, board chairman of the National Association of Investment Clubs, writes me that "this problem of denying ownership to the small investor is of tremendous importance and basic to our way of doing business."

Deny Discrimination For equally understandable reasons, the trend has spokesmen for Wall Street on the defensive. Again as an illustration, New York Stock Exchange president Robert W. Haack declares that "while there are instances in which firms place limitations on customer transactions, the great majority of member firms do not discriminate unfairly against small investors."

But let's dig beneath the rhetoric to the fundamental question. Is this discrimination (and of course, discrimination is what it is, no matter what the NYSE claims) good or bad for investors in particular and the economy in general?

It is bad, I submit, if you are trying to invest a modest $500-$1,000 in sound stocks. There is no defense for making it hard for you to put the nestegg you have earned or inherited in top-grade stocks which will rise as the economy grows and help you prosper. Thus the thing for you to do if you are turned down is to check further and find another member firm on the which will take your order. For the other side of the finding that 42 per cent of NYSE firms impose restrictions is that 58 per cent still do not—and among this 58 per cent are some of the country's biggest firms. But the discrimination is good, I also submit, if what you are trying to do is make money fast through in-and-out gambling in stocks. For you add an unhealthy element to Wall Street. You undermine the caliber of the stock market and weaken us all. Your type of activity is okay for the horses and the numbers, but not for the greatest stock market in the world.

If 1968-69's paperwork crisis helps squeeze the players out, I say good riddance. We're all better off.

Teens Well Informed On New Movie Code

Thomas Says Films Can be Answer To Generation Gap for Both Sides

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — What do teen-agers think about today's sex-charged movies? The latter was illustrated by one boy who said that he saw "The Graduate" with his parents. The film concerns a college graduate who is seduced by his girlfriend's mother. "After we saw 'The Graduate,'" my folks and I went home and had a long talk about morals," the boy said. "It was the first time we had been able to communicate on that level. I enjoyed the talk."

Here is what I learned by returning to high school. On the other hand, another boy said he and his father saw "The Graduate" separately. "My dad thought it was trash," the student reported. Many parents seem to feel that "The Graduate" is stacked against their side of the well-known gap, since it shows Dustin Hoffman as a young man who is given everything but attention and understanding by his status-conscious parents. The film must have struck a responsive chord with today's youth; most of those in the seminars had seen it.

How do girls feel about going on dates to films that feature sex and nudity?

'Tuesday,' '60 Minutes' Top Shows

BY TV SCOUT 8-8 Channel 5 — If these words about tonight's First Tuesday sound familiar, it's because we used them last month for a program that was preempted by President Nixon's address to the nation. There is a depiction of the daily life of an average policeman and the Oklahoma Evangelist, Billy James Hargis, on an anti-Communist tour of Rhodesia. There is also a revealing interview with Clay Shaw about his recent trial in New Orleans. Prince Philip is seen giving his views on the world-wide phenomenon of dissident students. Another feature is a "fat farm" in Mexico where excess poundage is removed. And for devotees of ear-shattering rock 'n' roll, the program shows that in many cases the exaggerated blasts have produced permanent damage to parts of the ear.

9-10 Channel 11 — 60 Minutes goes to extremes with two of its features, an interview with multimillionaire H. L. Hunt followed by a depiction of the hard and bitter lives being lived by the 10,000 German children fathered by Negro GI's during World War II. The program also goes on location to document to lives of heroin addicts.

6-30-7:30 Channel 5 — The Osmond Brothers are becoming a familiar TV sight, and a welcome one, as in this episode of The Jerry Lewis Show. The wholesome lads offer their renditions of "Let Go" and "Danny Boy." The featured guest is Leslie Uggams.

6-30-7:30 Channel 1-11 — Traffic in stolen narcotics is the theme of tonight's Mod Squad episode. Hospitals are being hit by the drug dealers to get their illegal product. The squad is assigned to guard a hospital with Captain Greer figuring which institution is due to be hit.

6-30-7:30 Channel 2 — Family Affair's young star, Johnnie Whitaker, stars on Lancer as the precocious son of an outlaw. He saves Scott's life when he finds the cowboy unconscious from exhaustion and heat prostration and restores him with water, food and shelter.

7-30-8 Channel 5 — Julia has hired a new babysitter in whom she has complete confidence until she tries to reach her home by phone and can't get through. Seems the young girl got a call while sitting with Corey and Earl J. Waggener and was so upset by it that she dropped the phone, fled the apartment and even fled town.

7-30-8:30 Channel 2 — Sheriff Deadeye has turned into the greediest lawman in the Old West, on The Red Skelton Hour. His lust for loot has become so pronounced that when the stage is robbed and he doesn't have an alibi, the town-people decide to hang him.

7-30-8:30 Channel 11 — There are two actresses who stand out on It Takes A Thief. One is Geraldine Brooks, who holds it all together with the excellence of her characterization. The other is sexy Carla Borelli, who has to do little more than stand there in her peckaboo costumes. The two play mother and daughter with mama holding the key to a question Mundy is trying to solve.

Jews to Worship in Homes Passover Begins Wednesday

Passover, which marks the human servitude been suggested light of the Israelites from and the Egyptian monarch ancient Egypt, as told in the spurned the words of Moses. The holiday marks the successful outcome of Moses' ef-

Jews throughout the world fors. The Old Testament tells how Moses commanded the annual observance so the story could be passed unfaithfully from seven days by Reform Jews and eight days by Conservative and Orthodox Jews.

At the ritual meal, known as Seder, there are traditional songs, narrations and prayers for freedom and deliverance. The last supper of Jesus was a Seder at Passover time.

Passover foods include the matzoh, or unleavened bread, to recall that baked in haste as the Israelites left Egypt; bitter herbs as reminders of hardships under Pharaoh's oppression; a sprig of parsley as a reminder that Passover also is a festival of spring. A roasted shank bone is an emblem of the paschal lamb and "haroses", a mixture of apples, nuts, raisins, cinnamon and wine, symbolizes the mortar used in Egyptian pyramids. As told in Scriptures, the Passover story centers about the demand made by Moses of Pharaoh that the Israelite slaves be set free. Never before in history had resistance against

Union Criticizes Heads of Some Institutions

Claim Instances Of County Employees
Doing Housekeeping

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — An officer of an association of county and city employe unions is complaining that the superintendents of some county institutions have "cushy" jobs and "bonanzas" at the expense of local taxpayers. Robert Oberbeck of the union association made his assertion in a publication directed to municipal employe union members, and said that some county institution officers have unbudgeted fringe benefits such as housekeeping and maid services through the use of county-paid employees recruited for other purposes.

He likened the benefits of some of the county institution chiefs with those provided for the governor of Wisconsin by law.

"What really makes this job rank with the governor's job and rate as a bonanza-type job is that some of the superintendents have maid service provided for them. We know of no other county or municipal appointed officer that has such a cushy fringe benefit provided for him by the taxpayers."

Oberbeck named no instances by locality, but wrote that "we have been informed of cases where these superintendents have full-time, county employees working either in their apartments or in the grounds residence doing housekeeping, sewing, ironing and other household functions that normally would be performed by the wife of the superintendent."

Meanwhile, he asserted, many of the county institutions are understaffed and have suffered from staffing difficulties for years.

Oberbeck's public attack was inspired, he said, by a recent publication of the Public Expenditure Survey of Wisconsin which he said misled the public about the rising cost of public employe salaries in the state. If the group is "really looking for an excuse to cut down on public expenditures they might start here," he declared.
